

Security and Rail Pension Payments Exceed Receipts

Funds Paid Out to Help States Get Started Account for Deficit

Washington — (AP)—The treasury revealed today that the social security and railroad retirement programs cost, up to Jan. 1, $284,681,343 more than the income from the taxes imposed to finance them.

The total expenditures were given as $960,976,658 and receipts $666,295,316.

An official treasury statement—the first of a monthly series on these new federal undertakings—emphasized, however, that such a condition was not to be considered permanent.

Social security taxes, the statement said, were designed primarily to build up a reserve for old age pension benefits whereas in the initial stages they have been applied widely to other uses chiefly grants to states to aid in getting their security programs started. Such grants accounted for about half the reported expenditures.

Job Insurance in Effect

While several phases of social security, including old age assistance; aid to dependent children; various health services and aid to the blind, were started before the first of the year, one of the biggest—unemployment insurance—did not become generally operative until that time.

The labor department reported that 1,162,000 persons in 21 states and the District of Columbia filed claims for such insurance during the first week. The total included 8,857 claims in Wisconsin which had begun its payments earlier.

What effect the social security program will have on employment is a subject of study by the senate unemployment committee which heard today that New York city's direct relief bill for last year amounted to $139,000,000.

New York Relief Rolls

William Hodson, public welfare commissioner, testified that in December the city's relief rolls totaled 326,421 persons.

The treasury statement gave this breakdown of income from social security and rail retirement taxes:

Old age taxes, $516,980,591.25; unemployment, $80,649,267.86; railroad retirement, $68,661,556.14; unclassified, $2,900.70.

Here is how the money was spent:

Grants to states, $326,537,805.98; administrative, $28,436,410.41; investment for old age reserves and railroad retirement account, $606,000,000; unclassified, $1,432.82.

Social security officials estimated there were 452,035 new applications for unemployment insurance claims were not valid, having been registered by persons unfamiliar with requirements that they must have been employed for a stipulated period in 1937.

Largest Since December, 1935

There were 452,035 new applications for work received by the federal employment service in December—the largest number in any month since December, 1935.

Secretary Perkins attributed the increase chiefly to requirements that would-be recipients of unemployment benefits must first try to get work through the federal service. On Dec. 31 it had 4,874,924 persons enrolled.

In another branch of social security, the old-age division reported the payment of $1,277,516 to 53,227 claimants during the first year of operation.

The payments, averaging $24.12, went to wage earners who had reached the age of 65 and to the estates or relatives of those who had died.

Old age pension payments by states included:

Michigan, $55,258; Wisconsin, $35,910; Iowa, $9,303; Minnesota, $16,030.

School Project Is Under Control of Public Works Body

City Attorney Issues Opinion at Meeting of Common Council

Waupaca—A bombshell was dropped into the laps of the city fathers at the regular meeting of that body Tuesday evening, when an opinion from City Attorney L. D. Smith, stated that "construction of the new school from the present time and on, is under control of the board of public works of the city of Waupaca, just as is any other public works under construction under their control."

The opinion came as the result of some misunderstanding as to who should be in charge of the supervision and construction of the new elementary school now in process of erection. The opinion stated that the board of public works should work in conjunction with the school board and the city of Waupaca in this respect, but in any conflict or difference of opinion between them, the board of public works has the decisive say subject to the approval and decision of the council. Any or all matters, including the hiring of a clerk or clerk in regard to the actual construction of the building, shall remain in the province of the board of public works and the council.

As an apparent afterthought, Mr. Smith declared that as a general rule members of the school boards are appointed because of their knowledge and ability to supervise the instruction given by the teachers in the public schools while the board of public works of the city is appointed because of the knowledge and ability of members of such boards to manage and control construction work in the city. The two boards are entirely separate and distinct and it is better the school board is for its purpose, the school members may know about construction work. The converse is also true—the better the board of public works, the less they are going to know about educational works, he stated.

Members of the Board of Public Works are Aldermen A. C. Looker, Stanley Wetherbee and Einar Torsell.

Campsite Question

During recent months complaints have been received by members of the council regarding the present campsite and its use by campers who spend weeks at the site, declaring this use of the camp to be objectionable. At the request of Mayor F. R. Fisher, the matter was referred to the campsite committee—Einar Torsell, George Freilberg and Paul Williams, who reported that while no revenue is received from the bathing beach that an income of $146.20 was received during the last season from campers. This income showing an increase in the last three years due to the popularity of camp trailers. The committee is therefore, not only paying its own way but aiding in the maintenance of the bathing beach.

A visit to the tourist grounds any Sunday during the last summer would have convinced one that the presence of campers does not interfere with the grounds being used for picnics or play by local people, the committee said.

Shortly before the death of J. F. Jardine, he appeared before the council asking for additional recreational resources for the children of the community, suggesting that the tourist camp be turned into a playground. He stated that he had not formed any personal opinion in the matter and was not representing any organization but had been asked by several citizens to bring the matter before the council. The committee was not in favor of creating a playground on this site, because it would necessitate expensive equipment, considerable work on the grounds, and the services of trained personnel for supervision. While this would be desirable, the additional burden on the taxpayers would not be justifiable.

In view of these facts the committee suggested that no change be made and the camp site be continued in operation.

Attorney Tom Browne requested that he be allowed to represent the Lions club before the council for discussion of the matter before they report on the committee. The matter was therefore laid over for two weeks.

The resignation of Andrew Peterson, dog catcher, was accepted by a unanimous vote of the council.

All members of the council were present, including the new alderman of the Fourth ward, Lester Laux, who was elected by the council at its last meeting to succeed Roy Rasmuss, for his unexpired term.

Waupaca City Attorney Discusses Progress Made During Thirty Years

Waupaca—The fifteenth annual meeting of the stockholders of the Waupaca Mutual Building and Loan association was held Monday evening at Hotel Delevan. For the first time in these 15 years the meeting was not held on the coldest, stormiest day of the year, the third Monday of January.

The directors were reelected: William Kneeland, Ralph High and Harvey Peterson. The directors re-elected Peter Holst, president; James H. Dance, vice president; R. E. High, secretary and treasurer, and Charles A. Hanson, assistant secretary. Other directors in addition to the three reelected are John Peterson, Chris G. Peterson and Chris H. Hanson.

President Holst, oldest tennis player in the city, introduced City Attorney L. D. Smith, speaker of the evening, as "Waupaca's leading tennis player." Mr. Smith talked on the 30 years he has spent as city attorney, the changing times and the progress made by the city. He compared the old disposal plant which cost the city $3,000 to the one recently completed at many times that figure; the ramshackle school building replaced by modern ones; the old electric light plant with its steam plant, and dilapidated water power plant, which often left the city in total darkness; and the old water system when water for drinking purposes was pumped from the lake.

Now the city has water as good as Stevens Point, the "city of wonderful water." The old fire department has been motorized. The park on S. Main street used for a display of flowers and a few benches which were discarded to use has now a tourist parking area and the finest bathing facilities in the state. The river projects offer skating and tennis, according to the seasons, for the youth of the city, all centrally located. According to Mr. Smith, if a man's house was located on a bad street for many years, that man can for many years, and while in office his street was improved.

Old Controversy

The Electric Light and Power company controversy was already begun when Mr. Smith assumed his duties as city attorney although the plant is the property of the public utilities and gives modern service, the controversy remains to be settled.

Two criticisms were made by the speaker: the lack of zoning ordinance and insufficient lighting of S. Main street. Although ornamental lights have been installed, they are not used in their entirety—every other one being shut off from dusk until 11 o'clock in the evening. James Dance gave a short talk.

European Youth Happy; Future Is Worry to Elders

Young German Workers Impressive, Buchanan Says in Talk

Young people in Europe seem happy but their elders are "worried and uncertain of the future," William E. Buchanan said in a talk before members of the Appleton Rotary club at noon yesterday in Hotel Northern.

Buchanan related incidents in his trip abroad last summer during which he visited England, France, Germany and Denmark. "Despite their lack of freedom, the young men and women appeared happy and confident, I was particularly impressed with their efficiency in the German factories, their philosophy of trying to produce."

The scourge of the World War shows itself in the dearth of middle aged men in France and Germany, Buchanan said, and alleviates unemployment in those two countries.

He attributed the business boom in Europe to the rearmament program and said that although Europeans are harassed by feelings of insecurity, especially the English, they did not seem to fear an immediate conflict.

The shortage of such foods as eggs, milk, and butter among average German families was noticeable, Buchanan said.

In comparing living costs, the speaker said he found that the prices of food, clothing, and shelter were similar to those of the same quality of commodities in America.

A visit to the Paris Exposition left him with the belief that France had "done a better all-around job than at the World's Fair in Chicago" and that Frenchmen seemed able to match Americans in building prowess.

Other new books placed on the shelves in the children's department this week are: "The Curious Lobster," by Hattie; "The Clockwork Twin," by Brooks; "Pettie Suzanne," by DeAngelis; "A Pony for Jean," by Cannon; "On the Banks of Plum Creek," by Wilder; "The Farm Beyond the Town," by White; "Hard Alice," by Benjamin.

"Smiling Hill Farm," by Mason; "Eastward Sweeps the Current," by Malkus; "Jean and Company," by "The Storekeeper," "The Farmer," "The Air Pilot," by Lent; "Animal Pets From Near and Far," by Sloane; "This Year; Next Year," by De La Mare.

Death of Paschen Accidental, Jury Decides in Probe

Others Involved in Collision Not at Fault, Verdict Reads

William Paschen, Kaukauna business man, "came to his death in a collision with his car and a bus on old Highway 41 near the residence of A. J. Shannon through no fault of any others involved," the above verdict was brought in by a coroner's jury yesterday afternoon after hearing testimony on the accident which occurred two miles north of Appleton shortly before 8:30 Monday morning.

Testimony given by Robert Davidson, driver of the bus involved in the collision, and William Evers, Little Chute, driver of a truck with which the Paschen machine collided before skidding into the path of the bus, stated that Paschen was driving towards Kaukauna when he attempted to pass the truck and then swerved to the left side of the highway where the collision occurred.

Lawrence Handyside, 735 E. Washington street, who was driving behind the bus, gave testimony that substantiated the statements of Davidson and Evers. County Motorcycle Officer told of the positions of the machines when he arrived at the scene.

The bus driver said he turned his Orange Line, southbound, bus into the ditch when he saw the Paschen machine skid in front of him. The cars came together just off the concrete, he said. Evers said he was driving his coal truck about 25 miles an hour and Davidson said he was driving the bus about 40 miles per hour and slowed it to about 20 before the crash occurred.

Seven passengers were in the bus and four of them besides himself were cut and bruised. Davidson told the jury. The testimony given revealed that the highway was in icy condition.

Life in Trailer Camp Is Not Always 'Bed of Roses'

BY CARL W. MASON

Corpus Christi, Texas.—The hopeful and enthusiastic individuals, almost without exception, who embark upon a life of trailer traveling find themselves preoccupied, well, high exclusively with the mechanical, the physical, the material aspects of the new venture. Only the experienced trailerite comes to realize, and maybe that sadly, the unsocial—the social, the psychological sides of the free life awheel is in the end equally important if not more so.

The wayfarer who keeps on the move, seldom pausing to light for more than a night or a few days at most, records perhaps a minimum of the seamy side of social contacts with fellow rovers and other strangers. These may be largely confined to occasional tilts with predatory or otherwise unsatisfactory business persons or to joustings with sub-perfect camp operators. But the trailerites who settle down for any length of time in a camp, particularly one of sizable proportions, unfold a different story. Existence in a trailer camp is a real life in a big way. The camp is a real little separate community by itself and with all the adjuncts and drawbacks of such. The inhabitants live altogether too closely together for comfort. Usually they are parked in a phagor without regard to personal interests, degrees of culture and social standing, taste, children, pets, activities, religion, background and a hundred other considerations. If little things assume surprising proportions in the small town these trifles attain monumental size often-times in the toy model circle of trailer life. The crowning feature of having too much spare time on their hands, so the devil finds plenty of occupation for his clients there.

Varied Activities

We have been for nearly a month now in this largest all-trailer camp in the West, between New Orleans and Los Angeles. We have dedicated, opened and seasoned a large camp community hall, have witnessed a change in management of the camp store, have carried out a large trailer convention, have enjoyed a good-sized trailer show, have had a succession of programs, addresses, public demonstrations, prize awards, dances, social functions, a dog show and parade, changes in trailer ownership, a lively Christmas observance and a noisy New Year's celebration, fishing, excursions and many more activities. There have been drunks, construction work, near fist fights, a fire scare and about everything that goes to make up a busy community.

And the extent, variety and volume of camp gossip, the bickerings, animosities, rivalries, disappointments and piques have almost passed belief. The camp wash house seems to be the center of trouble. Not only is it a clearing house for the latest gossip, it is a source of contention among the ambitious ladies desirous of cleansing the family linen. Two electric washers to serve a camp of upwards of 100 trailers, as an average, means a rationing of time via the registration and assignment of hour system. And these hours seem to be always becoming mixed and misunderstood. Lively altercations in which occasionally even the men participate serve to extend the lurid annals of the wash house which has an inadequate drain anyway, is "dirty," wet under foot, the gas stoves are set too low, there isn't enough light, the Negroes employed by some pauper slip on their own washing, do on someone else's time. Then the clothes line posts are set only in the light sandy soil and tend to grow weary of well doing and allow the lines to sag under unusually heavy loads to the detriment of the garments hung thereon.

Children rarely

There is a restaurant and drink parlor on the grounds and several outraged patrons whisper darkly of deceased cockroaches being found in sandwiches while their relatives scuttled unpleasantly over walls, shelves and counters. Sometimes there is no coffee available. The proprietor's wife isn't always nice to everybody.

There are usually 25 or more children in camp and some of them are of the berserker variety who make whoopee in the camp hall in defiance of the prohibitory sign on the wall and against the peace and dignity of the staid and cantankerous elders. One family has four husky young boys and on rainy days the trailer just can't hold them. The camp hall has to catch it.

A considerable number of the camp residents are "permanents," persons who live as residents, not as tourists, the men working in the surrounding oil fields or in the city. Their interests are not the same as those of the wandering trailerites. Some do not even have hitchers on their cars and have never moved their trailers. Rents are excessively high here—$50 to $80 for a modest apartment, $45 a month for a small shack on low ground, the outskirts, perhaps $4 or $5 a day in summer for little camp cabins that rent for a dollar or two a night and $5 or $6 a week in other places. These permanents, therefore, have a different problem than the travelers. They are often clannish or ultra reserved and furnish a jarring element in the ordinary atmosphere of a tourist camp.

Camp pets are another bulky item in camp considerations. The unanimity with which trailerites lug dogs around the country is simply marvellous. One here is a tiny toy Doberman Pinscher of pocket size than the others. One couple had a man eating black police dog that was the terror of the neighborhood and a hazard to everyone, young or old, venturing near its home. No two pets are ever similar. The climax was capped recently when a Pennsylvania family, with two children and a lot of tent and other paraphernalia besides, the trailer, brought in a lumbering 140-pound St. Bernard. Somebody here doesn't like pets (gossip says the new camp manager) so one day the dog catcher appeared with his sinister gauntlet in some canines he alleged were tame. One indignant owner declared the catcher cut the leash to release a pet and lock him up. Soon an outraged army of women issued forth and the dog catcher beat a hasty retreat.

Some trailerites go away and then come back as this is the only decent camp of the kind available here as far as I can find. These conditions doubtless exist in any camp of the kind where a considerable number of persons are crowded together. So the wise traveler starting out to taste the joys of the free untrammelled life and program of living in adventure arrange a workable philosophy for he will sorely need the reliance when he fits into the new nomadic life. He should know what to expect and be prepared to be not surprised by almost anything that may happen.

Boy Scouts and Their Troops

There can be no doubt that the recent downfall of snow which blanketed the countryside was most enthusiastically welcomed by our scouts. As a result, the majority of them will devote a great portion of their time to the enjoyment of the universally popular sports of skiing, sliding, and skating.

The most important business of the last meeting of Troop 46, Brillion, centered around a proposal that the troop should begin raising money to facilitate a trip to Gardner Dam next year. The proposition, which received the approval of the majority of the scouts, will enable every scout to enjoy the recreation that Gardner Dam offers.

Troop 26, Marion, has definitely set Thursday, Jan. 27, as the date for its next court of honor at which time several new scouts will be inducted into the realm of scouting, and a number of scouts formally will receive acknowledgment for their advancement. According to Phil Bowers, reporter for Troop 26, there are possibilities of promotions in the Green Bar council in respect to the offices of assistant scoutmaster and senior patrol leader. The last meeting of the troop was conducted by Sid Knutson, senior patrol leader. Sid has been very active in scouting and, as a reward for his commendable achievements, he will receive his Eagle badge at the coming court of honor. An opportunity was offered to ambitious scouts who wished to pass their test requirements Saturday, Jan. 15, when the troop held a test-hike to the test-grounds in Lorrigan's woods near Marion.

Harlan Neff, using the semaphore code, succeeded in passing his second class test in signaling. The meeting was presided over by Leon Pritzl, patrol leader.

Patrols were reorganized and temporary leaders were appointed at the last meeting of Troop 5, Appleton. The business of the meeting included the installation of new records and the passing of test requirements. A court of honor has been scheduled for the near future, and it is estimated that approximately 89 per cent of the scouts in Troop 5 will climb several more rungs in the ladder of scout ranking, while a number of others will receive leadership awards.

Twenty-eight scouts of Troop 30, Clintonville, evidently consider sliding the most popular of winter sports, for they again held a sliding hike recently. Transportation to Tellock's hill, a distance of nine miles from Clintonville, was furnished by Lloyd Pinkowski, Eddie Karcewski, Ted Joswiak, and Eljery Stromberg. The sliding accompanied by a variety of spills and thrills, was followed by a most welcomed supper over an outdoor fire. Ted Joswiak, assistant scoutmaster, was in charge of the trek. Due to the fact that the attendance of the last meeting was below par, Jack Martin has been appointed chairman of a committee on attendance, to compile an attendance chart to insure better attendance at future meetings. The business routine of the meeting, which was supervised by James Bohr and Neil Etheridge, included suggested improvements of future hikes and a report by Eddie Karcewski concerning a number of exhibits which will be shown by the troop in the near future.

Gardner Dam camp, interested his listeners with a description of the beautiful, new buildings which were recently constructed at the camp. Following the discussion, the scouts made arrangements for a trip to Gardner Dam sometime during the winter. A recreational game session was held under the supervision of Donald Meyer, Marion, who promised to take the troop on a weekend outing.

Bill Errington, a member of Cub Pack 6, Appleton, has been declared winner of a contest which was sponsored recently by the pack. The winner will receive acknowledgment for his achievement when he is given an award at a party next month. The Cubs and their parents are expected to be present at the event, which will feature a program presented by the Cubs.

Public Pays for All Fire Losses, Commission Says

Protection Against Them Pays Dividends in Lower Insurance Rates

Wisconsin's fire loss for the last several years has exceeded five million dollars, according to a report received by Fire Chief George P. McGillan from the state industrial commission. The loss for 1936-37 was $5,690,245 and there were 12,977 fires of which 8,000 were in residences, the report shows.

"The public, who protect themselves against fire, help pay for fire losses that occur," the commission says. "The people in any area may pay increased insurance rates as the fire losses increase. No fire insurance company can afford to assume business reverses and related losses for their assured and they can not afford to be careless about evaluating property."

"It is easier and less costly to prevent fires than to extinguish them after they have been allowed to start, and it pays big dividends to guard against fire hazards."

High Pressure Salesman Being Made Scapegoat

President Roosevelt Is Aiming at Regularized Production

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington—There's a new scapegoat being groomed for presentation to the country. He's the "high pressure salesman" and it is he, and not the big business or little business, who has brought on the depression and caused so much unemployment.

Back in 1929, there was high pressure selling, but it was supposed to have been confined largely to the marketing of securities. Now, it seems, the high pressure salesman has sold automobiles in too great a quantity. One sudden to think what would have happened to the managers of the automobile companies if, a year or so ago, they had said to the public, "You've got all the automobiles you need, and we will not sell you any more. We will lay off our workers."

Then there would have been cries of "conspiracy" to bring on a depression. Indeed, it so happens that Uncle Sam started, in the form of a soldiers' bonus, which did more than any other single thing to force automobile production schedules upward to record heights in 1936 and the early part of 1937. If the automobile dealers had not won some of those soldier bonus dollars for automobiles, the money, of course, would have gone into other things. Under a "planned economy," even the manner of expending a soldier bonus doubtless would have to be controlled.

Big Commissions
As a matter of fact, the soldier bonus money has come back to the federal treasury in no small part through taxation. Thus, the other day, there was published the list of individuals in the automobile industry who received in excess of $15,000 and there were many executives who received sums way in excess of that amount. This wasn't in the form of salary, because most companies have plans whereby commissions or bonuses are paid to management if the sales increase.

Businesses are counted as salaries for tax purposes, however, and government, meaning both federal and state, received somewhere between 75 and 85 per cent of the huge amounts credited to the business executives in the published list.

Again, one shudders to think what would happen to the tax receipts if some of the big companies were today to reduce salaries or cut down bonuses. It would mean that the treasury of the United States would lose some substantial amounts of revenue. It is to the interest of the government, therefore, to see that bigger and better salaries are paid. Most citizens would probably not relish an 80 per cent to 20 per cent partitioning of divisions of earnings with government, the smaller end going to the citizen, but that's the custom nowadays in the higher brackets of income.

Many a talented executive, no doubt, feels that he needs, let us say, $50,000 for himself and family, for insurance, for charities, or for all the many other things that men of means are counted on to support in their local communities. To have a $50,000 net salary, it becomes necessary for the company in question to pay somewhere between $100,000 and $150,000 in salaries or bonuses because so much of what is paid to the executive goes in taxation. Big salaries and bonuses are being paid in businesses where competition is keen and selling skill is an important factor.

Controlled Selling
To say, for instance, that the auto industry should not have sold as many cars in a given year as it did is but another way of claiming that demand and selling skill should be or can be controlled. It wasn't controlled in 1936 when the soldier bonus was distributed. It will not be controlled in other years for other reasons not now foreseen.

The administration will never make much progress on its "planned production" scheme by trying to regulate the terms of sale or the salesman's commissions. These should be as high as possible to encourage incentive. If the American people are unable to refrain from buying something they cannot afford, if they would prefer an automobile to a life insurance policy, or fancy wearing apparel to anything else, surely no system short of a regimented commonwealth can control or limit human desires.

What President Roosevelt is aiming at is regularized production. He is tackling all phases, doubtless on the theory that industries themselves will find some plan for adjustment and better balance. For the moment, however, the administration is interested in regularizing production largely to bring about a higher annual income to workers.

Impeded Production
Production, on the other hand, is impeded whenever any factor is introduced such as high taxation, higher than necessary labor costs, or undue increases in the cost of raw materials.

The administration is studying plans to keep down the prices of raw materials like steel, which, of course, is a big ingredient of automobile costs. To accomplish an equilibrium, it is the belief of some government advisers, that a ceiling or maximum must be put on raw material prices. If control is to come, it will have much more widespread effects in getting production lined up evenly than would any plan to fix the terms of selling. The making of easy terms is an incentive to marketing certain types of products. Also the government itself has believed so much in the theory of installment selling, for instance, that it has adopted a plan for housing which involves 10 to 20 years for repayments and allows an individual to buy and build a house with as little as 10 per cent down payment.

If high pressure selling is a national crime, then the gullibility of the public is something that needs correction, too, and that is a pretty big order to put into effect in a nation of 50,000,000 families.

50 Farmers are Enrolled in Night School at Chilton

Report Gains in Vocational Education for Rural Residents

Madison — The idea of vocational education for farmers and their sons is catching on in Wisconsin, says L. M. Sasman, state supervisor. In a progress report today pointed out that the largest class in night school thus far is in Chilton where 50 farmers are enrolled as students.

Sasman's report explains that today more than 1,100 Wisconsin farmers are studying in farm night schools, and 1,000 boys are in junior part-time farm schools under the direction of vocational agricultural teachers.

Courses for adult farmers are being offered this year in 55 night schools throughout the state in rural schools, high schools, town halls and homes. Besides Chilton, large enrollments have been taken this year at Blue River, Oshkosh and Oshkosh, Sasman said.

Part-time farm courses for boys under 21 are being offered in 50 Wisconsin high schools. Sasman anticipates that more than 2,000 boys will be enrolled in these courses by next spring. Among the larger enrollments is that of New London, totaling 38 this year.

Courses offered adult farmers include soil management, poultry diseases and herd improvement, methods of increasing the milk check, and feeding dairy cows more efficiently.

Under The Capitol Dome

By John Wyngaard Post-Crescent Staff Correspondent

Madison—Since the state supreme court a week ago dealt a mortal blow to the Progressives' program for socialization of the electric utility industry in Wisconsin, there is an abundance of curiosity on the next step which will be taken by the LaFollette and their party followers to carry out their avowed public power ownership desires.

Seven justices last week killed the state's "Little TVA" which after many long weeks of struggle was pushed through the 1937 session of the legislature by the Progressive majorities in both houses. Governor LaFollette was proud of the Wisconsin Development authority, immediately after the adjournment of the legislature took to the radio to discuss its possibilities. And the governor was equally disturbed last week when the high court figuratively threw it out of the supreme court window by a vote of 7 to 0.

The Alternatives
At least one influential Progressive already has expressed his opinion that the Progressive power plans can now be carried out only through municipal competition laws. During the week, however, the administration got plenty of unofficial suggestions on what should be its next line of action.

It was suggested that if the governor really wishes to legislate state competition in the electric utility business, he should immediately call a special session of the legislature to propose an amendment of the constitution to provide for such a step. A constitutional amendment resolution could be adopted at that special session, and adopted again at the regular session which convenes next January. Then the people of the state could vote on the question in a referendum which could be provided for the April elections next year.

Whether the governor and his administration advisors are paying any attention to such suggestions is not yet known. Meanwhile it seemed certain that Governor LaFollette will be forced to bring the WDA decision into his reelection campaign this fall. The comments of Assemblyman Andrew Biemiller, author of the defeated act when the court decision was announced this week, on "judicial oligarchy" show the FLTP reaction. In Madison W. T. Eyjue, party editor whose face and name have been fixtures of the Progressive movement longer than either of the LaFollette brothers, wrote that now "Governor LaFollette must admit that there has been a usurpation of legislative functions on the part of judges."

Why shouldn't a reactionary judge be opposed with the same ardor that a congressman or a member of the assembly or a state senator is opposed when he goes against the public interest?

The Charn of Office
Down in Richland county lives a man who has set some kind of a record in office-holding, according to Capitol oldtimers.

The man is Levi H. Bancroft, now 77, who 36 years ago left the Richland county court bench for the more promising field of state politics, and a few days ago, after holding 10 separate public jobs, returned to that Richland county courtroom.

Bancroft's career ranges from service on the county board of supervisors, to the office of attorney general in Wisconsin. He has been the mayor of Richland Center, speaker of the Wisconsin assembly, circuit judge, district attorney, and a colonel in the national guard while serving as judge advocate general. He was also at one time United States district attorney for the eastern district of Wisconsin.

Early in his career Bancroft was prominent in the Progressive movement, but many years ago broke with the elder LaFollette. His differences with the party, however, did not stop him from getting just about whatever office he wanted during 36 years.

Ex-Governors
A party of politicians at the Capitol the other day, discussing past and future events in the realm of politics, brought out the fact that Wisconsin's governors, like America's presidents, are quickly retired from politics when they leave office.

Wisconsin's living ex-governors, for example are all definitely unavailable as far as potential candidates are concerned, it was pointed out.

Fred R. Zimmerman, who once ruled from the executive office, was soundly snubbed when he ran for congress recently, and is now working as a subordinate in Sol Levitan's state treasury.

Francis E. McGovern, head of the state government more than 20 years ago, was similarly disappointed when he attempted a comeback a few years ago.

Walter J. Kohler, one of the best vote getters the Republicans have offered in recent state history, is considered to be definitely out of the state political picture. In Kohler's case, it may be said however, the reason is his own reluctance to leave his business for the rough and tumble of the political campaign field. Plenty of Republicans would be glad to draft him once more.

Albert Schmiedeman, who as mayor of the capital city moved across the street in 1932 when he became governor by virtue of the Roosevelt vote avalanche, is rarely considered by Democrats casting about for timbers.

Of course, there are outstanding examples in the state's political history in which the situation has been entirely different. Governor Blaine and the first Governor LaFollette, for instance, used the governorship as a step toward prominence in national circles, while it is exceedingly unlikely that the present Governor LaFollette will be content to twirl his thumbs after he leaves the governor's office.

The Big Wind
1937, it was said last week, will be known as the year of the big wind in that corner of the state capital occupied by the public service commission.

During 1937 the state public service commission heard 9,899,750 word of testimony, according to its stenographic reporting department.

In all departments of the commission 39,599 typewritten pages of testimony were recorded. If you have a knack for figures, you may figure out that the total represents the equivalent of about 50 pretty good sized novels, or the total editorial contents of an average city newspaper for approximately four months.

While the volume of work varies, the commission averages around 200 hearings in formal cases before it each month, cases involving rail and motor transportation, utilities, water power, and until last week, securities proceedings. To take a shorthand record and transcribe it into typewritten form, the commission has the largest stenographic force in the state government.

Gov. LaFollette On Program for Farm-Home Week

Outagamie County Farmers Expected to Attend Sessions at Madison

Governor La Follette, President Clarence A. Dykstra of the University of Wisconsin and Carl Taesch of the federal department of agriculture are among scheduled speakers at the annual Farm and Home week program to be held on the university campus, Madison, Jan. 31 to Feb. 4. A number of Outagamie county farmers are expected to attend some of the sessions.

The program, being arranged by Warren W. Clark, associate director of the agricultural extension service, will include discussions on farm ownership and tenancy, reciprocal trade treaties, government policies toward agriculture and farm debts.

Specialized agricultural groups that plan to hold conferences in connection with the Farm and Home week meeting are the county fair secretaries, fox and fur breeders, the Wisconsin Experiment association, beef breeders, Brown Swiss breeders, Guernsey breeders and sheep and wine breeders.

Copies of the detailed program may be obtained from W. W. Clark, Agricultural hall, Madison.

Asks Residents to Keep Piles of Snow Clear of Hydrants

Fire Chief George P. McGillan today asked Appleton residents to refrain from piling snow near fire hydrants in the city. Some persons have been cleaning their walks and piling the snow about hydrants and this may cause delay when the fire department is answering an alarm, he explained. The snow may hamper the fire fighters while trying to make hose connections to a hydrant.

Emergency Board Faces Unexpected Relief Demands

General Costs Over State
Are $400,000 Higher
Than Last November

Madison—(P)—Because of a heavy increase in the general relief load over the state, the administration's emergency board has been confronted with unexpected demands of localities for share in the $3,000,000 relief appropriation made by the 1937 legislature.

Populous counties such as Milwaukee, Kenosha, and Racine, which have not shared in the limited allotments available since 1935, recently sent delegations to advise Governor LaFollette they are urgently in need of help. Other counties are contemplating similar action.

The public welfare department reports that general relief costs over the state are $400,000 higher than last November, due to the business recession. The monthly load in January, 1937 was $1,275,917. The estimate for this month, based on partial data is $1,450,000. This is almost double the low figure of $769,308 in August, 1937.

Special Session
Delegations visiting the executive office in company with their legislators have spoken of the possibility of another special session to deal with the relief question, but Governor LaFollette has indicated definitely the problem will have to be met with state and federal funds now available.

The last legislature voted an appropriation of $3,000,000 to be used on so-called "fire department" or emergency basis of relief. Counties in acute financial distress, most of them in the northern part of the state, were the only ones participating in direct aid since the federal government stopped its allotments in 1935.

It was largely for them that the last appropriation was made. While the welfare department administers the allotments the fund can be used only as released by the emergency board, composed of the governor—and the senate and assembly chairmen of the finance committee. So far the board has released around $175,000 for December and January relief costs. It will consider new applications for aid when it votes the February allotment.

U. W. Students to Be Assistants in Appleton Libraries

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
Madison—Appleton public library will get two new assistants during the months of February and March, the Library School of the University of Wisconsin has announced.

School officials said today that its period of field practice for February and March will give 40 students practice work in 33 Wisconsin libraries. The academic schedule of the school will be suspended during that period and the students assigned to libraries will do actual library work of all kinds under the supervision of the local librarian.

To Appleton during February will go Delourise I. Layman of Madison, and during March, Thelma A. Hall of Jamestown, North Dakota.

During February Marie Drole of Tuscaloosa, Alabama will work at the Lawrence college library, while John P. Herling of Madison has been assigned there for the month of March.

A SYMPHONY WITHOUT ANGELS

The Appleton Symphony orchestra presents the first of its 1938 concerts tomorrow evening at Lawrence chapel, and there is more to the occasion than meets the eye—and ear.

At the outset, let it be understood that the Appleton Symphony is a competent musical organization. Each previous performance has pleased critical lovers of music. Each concert has featured a guest soloist of considerable repute. Tomorrow's audience, for example, will hear Ennio Bolognini, noted Argentine cellist.

The Appleton Symphony orchestra, unlike many in metropolitan centers, has no "angel" or group of "angels" to make good the seasonal deficit that has come to be associated with enterprises of this nature. None was needed, incidentally, because there has been no deficit. The interested citizens who sponsored the project were never called upon to make good on their pledges, although they may have had every expectation of doing just that.

True, the Appleton Symphony pays no majestic salary to its conductor, nor does it maintain its musicians on a payroll. Still, guests soloists must be paid, music must be purchased, and other expenses must be met. These are no small items when you start from scratch to organize and maintain a 50-piece orchestra, be it on salary or otherwise.

Full credit for the success of the Appleton Symphony is necessarily divided. The work of the men who organized and rehearsed the orchestra is well known. Their efforts, however, would have been futile had not a remarkably high level of talent been available in the city or had the musicians themselves not been sincerely interested. These musicians come from surprising places. There are students, business and professional men, housewives, and a traveling man who arranges his trips so that he may be present for rehearsals. They play for the sheer love of playing—and they play well.

You will enjoy yourself tomorrow evening if you go along to hear the symphony orchestra—the only one of its kind in the state—that functions so pleasingly without an "angel."

FINKLE OVER THE WHITE HOUSE

A single organization is about to take over the sports destinies of America. And that organization is one man.

In New York City Ben Finkle has revealed his potent secret. Mr. Finkle has announced that he is "The Evil Eye."

It seems that Finkle has an eye with which he can transfix athletes, and, for a consideration, he can hex a competitor so that he does not have a chance of winning any specific event.

Up to this time Finkle has devoted most of his energies to boxers. He got into the big time by acting as spiritual aid to Solly Krieger, Brooklyn middleweight. He says he went into Billy Conn's dressing room the night of the big Krieger-Conn fight in Pittsburgh, closed his right eye and stared at Conn with his magical left, and right then Conn was all through.

Finkle's manager says they tried to get him to come to Milwaukee for Krieger's match with the well-known Milwaukee boxer, George Black. But Finkle was busy. For a special consideration, however, he took an evil squint at Black's picture. Black lost.

Now Finkle is planning to expand. This winter he's going to hit the southern race tracks and try his luck on horses. And he's going in for football and baseball too.

It looks as if the whole sports world one day in the not so distant future will be at the mercy of Ben Finkle's evil eye.

Finkle has admitted that he has had engagements in Washington with the congressmen and senators. He wouldn't say what the occasion was, but it must have been about the time Justice Black was being ratified for the supreme court.

HOLDING COMPANIES

The President's interview favoring elimination of all holding companies in the country is raising opposition among his closest intimates as it will be sure to be opposed by all men who look into it far enough to see its consequences.

Senator Norris spoke in favor of retaining first degree companies, that is those which hold securities in operating companies only. Others like Senator Borah were equally quick to point out the necessary and entirely inoffensive operations of useful concerns about which the President apparently had no information before he took his reckless dive.

One can find examples of necessary holding companies everywhere. Let us assume that one of our numerous paper mills in this valley deemed it expedient to protect itself by the purchase of some thousands of wooded acres in northern Minnesota or Canada. It could not be done advantageously without the creation of another corporation in order to obtain the benefits advanced by almost all states for corporations organized within their borders. So if a Fox River Valley paper mill organized another corporation to hold its timbered land it would immediately become a holding company. And if it found it either expedient or necessary to form still another corporation in order to produce power and to receive the ordinary rights of such companies it would become a double distilled holding corporation.

It might go from that point to establishing in Chicago or New York a selling agency and again it would have to have a corporate form for that purpose in order to have the facility of movement available to other corporations in that state.

Here we have examples of work or operating companies using other corporate forms legitimately for the purpose of advancing their very necessary business and without which they might shrivel and die. Perhaps there are a hundred times as many legitimate holding companies in the country as those that serve no proper purpose in our society.

Numerous other well known instances could be easily cited. General Motors is a holding company. It owns the stock of Cadillac, Oldsmobile, Chevrolet, etc., the operating companies. Thus it is able to create an integrated unit in the automobile world. American Telephone and Telegraph is a holding company. It owns the stock of the different operating companies in the states. If it were liquidated the efficiency of the greatest telephone system the world has known would go out the window.

Holding companies simply cannot be lumped into one hopper. Where they serve a legitimate business purpose, and therefore result in economy or efficiency, they must be preserved. This is no favor to their operators. It is a protection to the public.

THE MAN WHO WROTE AS HE PLEASED

As Mr. Lundberg, author of "America's Sixty Families," is whacked over the head in running the gauntlet of criticism we intercede to pay him a compliment. He is frank, at least. And perhaps it is his candor that has opened him up so wide to attack from every source.

Mr. Lundberg set out to estimate the wealth of these sixty families and ended up by putting it at slightly over three billions or 50 millions a family. He adopted a method of his own in arriving at these figures. He selected 1924 as a happy year and took the income tax figures of these families for that year and used those figures as a basis. From them he started building his pyramid. Taking this net income and multiplying it by 20 which is capitalizing it at 5 per cent he arrives at a result representing the value of the property from the standpoint of income yield alone. Then Mr. Lundberg poured some hot mustard into the figures by multiplying again by 3 to produce what he calls the "gross adjusted income" whatever that might be.

There is no question but what Mr. Lundberg has selected for discussion America's richest families but his process at arriving at the value of their wealth is purely fantastic.

The shocking errors which have become a part of this book, to call them by no more serious a name, places Mr. Lundberg at the head of careless persons. Thus he says as the basis of some of his best figures, "by the close of 1916 stock exchange prices had risen 600 per cent over the 1914 average." Yet according to the very reliable Dow-Jones index of average prices, and which is accepted everywhere by men familiar with markets, the increase instead of being 600 per cent was not quite 100 per cent. But what is a mere 500 per cent to a fellow when he starts taking the muck?

It is from such a treatise that cabinet members take their figures and their gospel when they go out to repair the damage they have already done the country.

Opinions Of Others

BOYCOTTING JAPAN

That many Americans as individuals should resent Japan's attacks on China is natural. That this resentment should affect adversely the sale of Japanese goods in this country is, therefore, likely. American toy makers, no doubt, will be the beneficiaries of this Christmas of the feeling that Japan's actions have aroused.

But the organized boycott idea, endorsed by the American Federation of Labor in Denver and by other powerful individuals and groups is, we believe, a highly dangerous phase of our relationship to the whole hazardous international situation.

What an individual does in determining where and what he shall buy is one thing and a very different thing from a whipped-up, highly propagandized and regimented mass movement.

The boycott is a doubtful method at best, even in domestic economic disputes. It has a habit of backfiring on those who organize it. Born as it is of ill-temper and strife and driven among human beings, it is essentially emotional, rather than rational, in character.

As such a movement would touch the highly-sensitive foreign scene it quickly would prove to be full of dynamite. For it could be made to succeed only if accompanied by the singing of a hymn of hate, which would be tragically reminiscent of those days when the war fervor was lashed up in so short a time—when "Over

THE SLIGHT, if any, reduction in federal expenditures looks to be pretty near to doing a fast reverse. . . . I was just looking over the ships provided for in the new navy building program. . . . just a couple of items will show you what I mean—two battleships at $70,850,000 each. . . . two cruisers at $22,288,000 each. . . . and seventeen other ships, the cheapest of which will cost a mere $2,054,000. . . . of course, we probably need them, considering what goes on around the world, but I hope we have a definite program that will make expenditure of the money worthwhile (after all, enough has been wasted, hasn't it?) . . . and I hope the ships are of sufficiently advanced design to do their job well for years. . . .

PROSPERITY? RECOVERY? OR WHAT HAVE YOU?

For many days in many ways, I've written many lines; I know you'd print them without stint; I know the reader pines; I say a verse and then a curse, As through the snow I tramp; I tried like sin to send them in, But could not buy a stamp.

—D Grade Pulp

(It was the typical Roosevelt generosity that gave us beer and then made us unable to pay for it.—D.G.P.)

Giving us an indication of what to expect before the next election.

Because D Grade Pulp is catching up with his duty to the public, I present another of his works today.

FLATS

I live in a three room apartment, Where daily I hang up my hat, And each day I meet High rent and low heat; The realtor called it a flat.

I drive in a very old auto, With parts of this model and that; And it would run more, But three out of four Of tires are generally flat.

I live in a three room apartment, With a wolf sitting there, on the mat. My balance is red, The bookkeeper said; My flats are just keeping me flat.

This reminds me of when three of us lived in a two room apartment and there wasn't room to hang up a hat.

A Verse for Today

By Anne Campbell

A picture of the baby Came in the mail today! We opened up the parcel, And saw a smile so gay, At once our hearts grew lighter, And Trouble ran away!

A picture of the baby! The day was dark with gloom, But now the sunbeams linger, And lilacs shed perfume! I see the Springtime dancing All morning in my room!

A picture of the baby! We did not realize How hopeful is the future Seen through a baby's eyes! Here is our dearest treasure This side of Paradise! (Copyright, 1938)

Prof. Percy Fullinwider, violinist at Lawrence conservatory today announced that he had arranged a concert tour under the management of the Redpath Concert bureau and will make a tour through the western country in the summer. The troupe will consist of Prof. and Mrs. Percy Fullinwider, violinist and pianist, Carl Waterman, tenor soloist and Miss Louis Smith, cellist.

Twenty men began trimming poles and doing preliminary work this morning in connection with the merger of the Fox River and Wisconsin telephone systems.

Dr. R. M. Bagg, associated with the geological department of Lawrence college, will go to Amherst college alumni in honor of President-elect Meiklejohn.

There succeeded "He Kept Us Out of War." Once hate was engendered through the boycott process it would be only another step to actual conflict.

It may be that we are headed for concerted action with other nations against the outlawry of which the president spoke. Should economic pressure prove to be the only way, there is a manner provided by the covenant of the League of Nations. We hope and trust that the scene will clear before sanctions are called for, but such economic pressure does not depend on hate but rather on cold reason.

If we as a nation do decide to indulge in economic force it should only be in concert with other nations after calm and careful deliberation and not in a home-made and privately agitated boycott.—New York World-Telegram.

CHILBLAINS AND FROSTBITE

Chilblains is the mildest degree of frostbite or freezing, comparable with a first degree burn (mere reddening and irritation of the skin without blistering). Numbness and tingling, followed by loss of sensation if it is a severe frostbite, or by pain and swelling if it is ordinary chilblain.

Mild chilblain itches and burns looks red, disappears in a few hours if bathed with a simple astringent wash, such as a pinch of alum in warm water, then dried and powdered with plain talcum or borated talcum powder.

As numerous doddering old timers assure me, I may be wrong about this, but I prefer to go along with Vilhjalmur Stefansson, the arctic explorer, whose experience at least carries weight.

Mr. Stefansson found that gentle friction with the dry palm, the hand being warmed against the breast under the clothing, best restored the circulation if applied as soon as the ear, nose, finger or foot became thoroughly chilled, numb or turned white. Along with this treatment, internal stimulants, warm nutritious drinks, coffee, tea, hot soup if available, but of course never alcoholics. Somehow Mr. Stefansson never cared to resort to applications of ice or snow or cold water. Stefansson never did take much stock in fishwife lore. Great fire-side explorers had always asserted that a white man could not live a whole year in the arctic; Stefansson lived five years there. Eminent medical authorities had always assumed a white man could not live on meat alone—they opined he'd be certain to suffer with gout, rheumatism, acidosis and all sorts of maladies. Stefansson lived a year on an exclusive meat diet, under constant observation of competent medical scientists, and finished the year in better health than he had enjoyed at the beginning of the experiment.

The important rule in the first aid management of frostbite is this: Desist from gentle friction or rubbing or kneading with the warm fingers or hand the instant the blanched or white appearance of the frostbitten part changes to a pink flush.

If blisters rise, in chilblains, they must be treated as you would treat blisters from a burn or scald—it is always wisest to have medical care, but if medical care is not available, the blisters should be opened by incision thru an iodine painted spot with sterile (boiled) scissors or knife, to drain the fluid or serum, then the surface should be covered with borated talcum and clean socks or stockings put on.

Wool or silk or a combination of silk and wool socks or stockings should be worn as a preventive against chilblains—never cotton.

One subject to chilblains must carefully avoid sweating feet or wet feet. Thick soles and rubbers or "arctics" should be worn when the ground is covered with snow or slush. The feet will keep warm if woolen underwear is worn; this may be light weight, knitted and perfectly comfortable—there is no "itch" in woolen or part woolen underwear nowadays. Avoid circular elastic hose supporters, tightly laced or buttoned shoes, too tightly fitting shoes—these all tend to interfere with circulation in the feet. Cork insoles help to prevent chilblains. A minute or so, as many times a day as possible, lying on the back with legs elevated vertically while an imaginary barrel is sugared with the feet or an imaginary bicycle is pedaled fast, improves circulation in the feet and legs, especially where varicose veins are present.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Ask Your Doctor

What are the charges for the ambulance or injection treatment of hernia? Can one get it in the . . . hospital? (G. S.)

Answer—I can give no information about fees. That is a question to ask your own doctor. The ambulance or injection treatment does not keep the patient from his ordinary work, so there is no excuse for hospitalization. The doctor treats you in his office.

Your Birthday

"AQUARIUS" If January 20 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 8:45 to 10:45 a. m.; from 1:45 to 3:45 p. m. and from 8:45 to 10:45 p. m. The danger periods are from 6:45 to 8:45 a. m.; from 3:45 to 5:45 p. m. and from 10:45 p. m. until midnight.

If January 20 is your birth anniversary, you were born under the Zodiacal sign AQUARIUS. Aquarians, as a rule, have sufficient determination, patience and ambition to assure them of success. You have probably the gift of being able to gather and remember information that will be of use to you, and the wisdom to discard and forget that which is of no value. You are apt to have very positive likes and dislikes. Your kindness may frequently prompt you to do things that your common sense warns you against. You are, however, thoroughly practical as well as methodical in most business matters. Your intuition, if followed, will save you from making many mistakes, particularly when over the human element requires consideration. You, in all likelihood, abhor all forms of hypocrisy and pretense, frankness being perhaps your outstanding characteristic. Married and engaged couples, as well as sweethearts, will do well to remember that the amethyst, opal or sapphire are among the natural affinities of those born on this date.

If a woman and January 20 is your birthday you should find Wednesday usually a very propitious day for you. You should affect mixed colors, as well as blue. You ought always take plenty of exercise, and see that your living and working quarters have sufficient fresh air. Guard against becoming too unconventional, theatrical, educational or artistic nature is apt to provide the best opportunity for your scoring a great success. Conditions relating to your matrimonial affairs appear to be most satisfactory.

The child born on January 20, as a rule must be taught to respect its elders. Self-control. The principals of unselfishness must also be instilled in this youngster.

If a man and January 20 is your natal day, your ability, vision, and foresight should carry you to success. Law, medicine, activities that may help make you very prosperous.

Seen And Heard In New York

BY GEORGE TUCKER

New York—One reason we like some movie directors is that they can, if they will, tell you what's NOT in their pictures and sometimes that's a lot more fascinating than what gets to the screen. We wouldn't say that last is the case with "Wells Fargo" but no one could dig through 30 or 40 years of Overland mail history without turning up more facts than could be crammed into a film fiction. And when the digger is a born storyteller like Frank Lloyd, the siftings are bound to be plentiful and entertaining.

We barged around to see Lloyd as soon as he hit town. We always do. Lloyd was tossing pies in Mack Sennett comedies when Mabel Normand, Ford Sterling and Ben Turpin were the custard comedy stars. Since then he's directed more than 300 pictures, won Academy awards three times. . . . with "Divine Lady," "Cavalcade" and "Mutiny on the Bounty" . . . so there's much about pictures he doesn't know.

He doesn't look a thing like the story book conception of either an actor or director. To make it more complicated, he's a dead ringer for James Montgomery Flagg, who doesn't look a thing like an artist.

One thing he told us about that you won't see in "Wells Fargo" is a stage coach holdup. Lloyd filmed one for the picture but threw it out. It took a lot of nerve. . . . like showing a shot of Paris without the Eiffel tower. But when you have three of the Academy's little statuettes in your home, you can do things like that.

Of the unfilmed tales that came out of Lloyd's latest opus, we like best the one about the rancher who beat out what was probably the United States first "bank holiday." Word came to San Francisco by Overland mail of a panic in the east and all banks folded. The rancher's life savings, some $9,000, were deposited with the express company, which had folded like the rest. When the rancher got the news, a ship already was pounding out through the Golden Gate to carry word of the panic to Portland.

Grabbing a horse tethered in the street, the rancher started his race with the coastwise packet. He killed three horses and almost killed himself before he arrived in Portland. Once in town, he bought a new suit of store clothes, dashed to the hotel, bathed, shaved and changed. And then walked very leisurely into the express company office and presented his receipt with a draft for the $9,000. When he walked out of the office, he could see the packet sitting up to her pier. A half hour later, the express company closed its doors.

Lloyd has half a dozen more tales but the only fact there's space for is that America was slogan-conscious even in the old buffalo days, plastered across the prairie was the Overland Mail company's great advertising catch-phrase: "A Tight Trace All the Way."

Every time they put some corn in the rock bowls so the public will know what they were used for, mice get into the exhibit cases and eat it up.

A Bystander In Washington

BY PRESTON GROVER

Washington—This little playlet is entitled "Much Ado About Nothing, or A Day In the Life of a Filibuster."

Scene: The senate chamber. A dozen senators are sitting about, maybe ten dozen at times, some listening, some yawning, some signing letters, some just sitting. The senate is debating the anti-lynching bill.

Red-and-white-whiskered Senator Lewis of Illinois has just proposed to remove a paragraph which exempts gangsters and labor demonstrators from the grip of the bill. The argument seems to be that the bill exempts gangsters or labor demonstrators without the need of saying so in a special paragraph.

Senator Lewis: "Mr. President, I have moved to strike out of the bill the provision I have read touching the question of exempting gangsters from the provision of the bill, and also those involved in labor disputes."

Senator Barkley of Kentucky: "I do not believe there has been any criticism of the wording which would eliminate labor disputes."

Senator Lewis: "Mr. President, I am pleased to inform the distinguished leader, the senator from Kentucky, that I am informed by the senators from New York (Mr. Wagner) that upon information from sources, it is both desired and consented to that this reference to labor disputes be eliminated. I do not know for whom he speaks, but of course, I take his word."

Senator Connally of Texas: (Note —He hates the anti-lynching bill as an offense against southern state sovereignty.) "Would the senator from Illinois mind telling me who these mysterious, occult, insidious, and influential interests are which are dominating the senate without disclosure of who they are or where they are from?"

Lewis: "I have none of that occult power to detect such influences. I am compelled to say my information is from the two senators, Mr. Van Nuys of Indiana and Mr. Wagner of New York, who I assume have had their information from a proper and legitimate source."

Connally: The senator from Illinois ought to unmask himself (laughter), legislatively at least, and tell us who it is who can pull a string in some dark chamber in the city and immediately have the senator from Illinois pop up in his place in the senate and modify his amendment."

Lewis: "I have never met them; no such influences have approached me. . . . I say to the senator from Texas that I represent the city of Chicago and this particular provision reflects on Chicago."

Connally: "If there is any reflection on the senator's constituents, it is simply because he recognizes that the bill under its terms would cover more gangsters and more racketeers in Illinois and Chicago than in any other place. (Laughter.)"

Lewis: "Mr. President, I must say that it has been reported that bands have passed through my city, though they have come from other sections of the country, some of them poorly endowed by their birth, as was disclosed at the time they were being hung in my community." (Laughter.)

Senator Dietrich of Illinois: "The original bill contained a provision that the county itself in which the lynching took place should be responsible to the amount of $10,000 to the legal representatives of the person who met his death by violence. In case gangsters should take their victims to a certain county, we do not want the legal representatives or the wives of those gangsters to have an action against such county for $10,000. The text of the bill has been materially changed until this language is no longer necessary." (And so on, far into the night.)

There's one thing that will move these o'coats fast . . . and that's FORCE!

It's no secret . . . we'd rather have these o'coats in your home than on our inventory and we're quoting wholesale prices to do a wholesale business.

These forced prices leave you without an excuse for not buying and leave our cabinets ready for Spring. They're gorgeous o'coats. The buying begins immediately.

Today and Tomorrow

BY WALTER LIPPMAN

A Symbolic Conference

Last Friday the President received a delegation of highly symbolic figures in our public life. There was Mr. Thomas W. Lamont, of J. P. Morgan and Co. There was Mr. John L. Lewis, of the C. I. O. There were Messrs. Berle and Tausig, of the original brain trust, and in spirit there was Mr. Rexford Guy Tugwell. In the popular mythology of the past few years three of these men, Mr. Lamont, Mr. Lewis, and Mr. Tugwell, had virtually ceased to be human beings and had become legendary creatures incarnating huge forces and great ideas contending for the possession of the American soul.

Mr. Lamont, if we are to believe imaginative artists belonging to the school of Secretary Lohr, is the head and front of a gigantic capitalistic network which reaches out to control practically every activity of the American people. Mr. Lewis, if we are to believe revolutionary network controlled from Moscow. And Mr. Tugwell, if we are to believe such master minds as Mr. John Hamilton, of the Republican party, was once the cunning brain in the head behind the front of a political governmental network reaching out to control the lives and labor of the American people.

And now it transpires that these three symbolic figures have been conferred together, have found sufficient common ground to approach the President and to ask him—symbolically—what in the name of time he thinks he is doing.

President Appears Unable To Decide

The President, it would appear, is unable to make up his mind whether he really wishes to travel the road from big business through big unionism to a big state collectivism. In many phases of his temperamental proclivities he is torn. He promises to bring about the kind of organized control of economic activity which would appear to be ever so much more rational, efficient, planned and co-ordinated than a system of free enterprise. Mr. Roosevelt is a child of the era, and in this era men have been enchanted by the vision of the economy as a beautifully perfected machine directed by the most highly intelligent and the most benevolent men in the community. Mr. Roosevelt likes bigness, he has great faith in man's capacity to rule his fellowmen, and he loves the power to set things right and nicely in their proper order.

But there is another side to his temperament. It is attached to the native American progressivism; it responds to the great mass of middle class persons who are the real owners of the Democratic party. And on this side of his mind the President shrinks from the implications of so much big power, no matter whether it resides in big business, or in big unionism, or in the big state. When his mind is open in this direction Mr. Roosevelt is pulled and pushed both by the genuine progressives and by the very powerful men in Congress who remain Democrats and have no appetite for an adventure in socialism. Then he can permit Messrs. Jackson and Lohr to make their speeches attacking monopoly, and even go them one better by suggesting, between puffs of a cigarette, as Mr. Franklin W. Johnson put it the other day, that the holding company, the very keystone of the giant corporation, must be abolished.

Three Figures Have Much in Common

This is all very gratifying as evidence that the symbols of the class struggle in America are not engaged in such a fierce struggle but that they can take a common interest in making the industrial machine work and in keeping America a going concern. But there is, I think, more to this meeting of minds than at first appears, and it is the popular superstitions that have grown up around all three of these men which are the real subject of the conference. It would be found that far from symbolizing great contending forces, they have much in common and represent fairly well three successive stages of one of the leading social developments of our time.

They represent the progress from big business through a deadlock with big unionism to some form of big socialism. The giant corporations, like United States Steel, for example, which the house of Morgan has created or befriended, must in the natural course of events call into being the mass unions which Mr. Lewis is promoting. The one necessarily leads to the other. For when many thousands of workers are employed by a combine of which the directing head is far removed from any possibility of personal contact, the workers will, as a matter of course, tend to combine under a chieftain big enough to talk on equal terms with the head men of the giant corporation. But the consequence of confronting big business with very big unionism is either to bring about perpetual strife, which makes it excessively difficult to produce wealth, or to bring about so much "harmony" that big business and big unionism jointly squeeze the consuming public by controlling the supply and raising prices.

It is at this point that Mr. Tugwell's general views become a serious factor in the situation. For the eventual remedy both for the strife between big business and big unionism as well as for their too harmonious combination to administer monopolistic prices is the intervention of big government. In time it must become impossible for big business to fix prices. It must become impossible for big unionism to quarrel incessantly with big business. It must become intolerable for big business and big unionism to combine. At that point, and we have not been so far from that point in the past few years, the government enters into the situation in a big way, and by force of circumstance the country finds itself in the first phase of a collectivist regime.

Mr. Lamont, Mr. Lewis, and Mr. Tugwell are, so to speak, the three generations in the progress from an individualistic to a socialist society, and their common effort at this time is more deeply appropriate than it will seem to Mayor Hague, to some of Mr. Lamont's friends and to most of Mr. Tugwell's admirers.

Not Likely President Will Classify Position

Only one man with clairvoyance would venture to say whether Mr. Roosevelt will clearly decide which course he means to take. But judging by the record of the past, and assuming that men do not at Mr. Roosevelt's time of life change their temperaments, and recognizing that either course is politically dangerous and that both have very powerful advocates, one might expect Mr. Roosevelt will be unable to choose. Though he may appear to choose he will not choose, and he will put the advocates of each policy on the head in turn.

It would be a mistake to complain too much about this. It is not likely that Mr. Roosevelt will "clarify" his position and then adhere to the position he seems to have clarified. For Mr. Roosevelt is the leader of a political party, and the big business of a political party is naturally one of his chief concerns. It is the way of democracies to shrink from logic. This is perhaps their virtue, because men are more divided by their theories than they are by their interests or by their sentiments. So popular leaders play both ends against the middle and never commit themselves thoroughly. Then they muddle through despite the howls of the doctrinaires.

Eventually, however, events clarify issues, and perhaps when they have, Mr. Roosevelt will find that his mind has been made up for him.

PRIZED TAPESTRY SHOWS WASHINGTON

Treasures Old Tapestry Worked in Needlepoint

BY MRS. C. C. FOLKES

A colorful and priceless needlepoint tapestry depicting the figure of George Washington which was made about 60 years ago by Mrs. Julia Harbeck is the prized possession of Mrs. Henry W. Meyer, 227 N. Morrison street. Mrs. Harbeck's daughter, Mrs. Meyer by her mother when Mrs. Harbeck was 60 years old.

Measuring 31 by 4 feet exclusive of the frame, the tapestry took Mrs. Harbeck 2 years to make. Working in her spare time, she liked to rise at 4 or 5 o'clock in the morning and begin work on it before the rest of the family were up, laying it aside when they arose and picking it up again during leisure moments of the day.

George Washington stands in one of the rooms in the capitol at Washington, his right hand outstretched and his left hand on his saber. In the background of this tapestry are worked in richest tones of red yarns the lovely velvet drapes which must have hung in the capitol room. Only the expert eye of the artist could portray just the right highlights in these drapes which were tied back by a golden tassel.

Much of the yarn used throughout was purchased in Milwaukee and abroad. No frames were used by Mrs. Harbeck and the completed work was kept rolled up in a clean cloth as she progressed.

Hanging at the president's side is a most interesting jeweled saber. The ornate decorations on the handle are worked out in iridescent beads, the jeweled sabers usually belonging to a general in high command. Every stitch was carried out in

Authority on Far East Crisis Will Talk in Appleton

Colonel Tehou to Speak at Education Association Meeting

Colonel M. Thomas Tehou, Chinese officer who will speak here Jan. 25, is gaining wide spread fame throughout the nation with his talks on the crisis in the far east.

He will address members of the Appleton Education association and guests at 8 o'clock Tuesday evening in the Appleton High school auditorium. The association has invited the public to hear Colonel Tehou, who is expected to paint an accurate picture of what is happening in China and what the Chinese people think.

Here is a quotation from Colonel Tehou's talk which appeared in a New York newspaper:

"We in China expect your cooperation and it is up to you to choose the method of cooperating. I might, however, that if you did not supply Japan with foreign exchange, in three months her aggression would be halted. We have no bone to pick with the Japanese individuals. Our land is fighting the Japanese generals, who are exploiting their own people as well as warring against us."

Professor Sees War as Result of German Rearming

Dr. Ludwig Freund Discusses Current Situation In Talk Before Club

Neenah — Foreseeing war as the outcome of Germany's conscious increase in national indebtedness by its broad rearmament program in which most of the German people are employed, Dr. Ludwig Freund, professor in sociology at Ripon college, told members of the Women's Tuesday club Tuesday afternoon in the Neenah library that when a nation's whole program is militaristic in character, when its youth are trained in war-like spirit, war is the only outcome, the only solution.

"However," said Dr. Freund who was born in Germany, entered military service in 1914 at the age of 16 and who received his education in German universities, "if there is no war, there will be increasing poverty in Germany which may be covered up by the party in power but it will lead to another revolution. There is one bright aspect in the picture. Many of the German people have run along with the party because they are materialists, they stay with the winner as long as he is winning but should the cause of living and drag them down, they will not stick and will rise against that power. I hope I still live to see that day."

Discussing the psychological factors that lead to Germany's present situation, Dr. Freund stated that as each generation grows up in specific conditions of life, each adds to the cultural and social complications and creates a different situation for the next generation. It is logical to assume that in a state of crisis, it is generally found in an entirely new environment arises as adjustments are made. From this preface, Dr. Freund described his early life in Germany which brought him to 16 years of age with great ideals about the grandeur and splendor of the German race. He became a soldier at 17 and his ideas and perspective changed as he faced realism. "When bullets are whizzing around your head and hand grenades are bursting, things don't look so rosy, they take on a different color, more reddish," he said.

Deep Impression

The defeat of Germany gave another deep impression as did the happenings during the years of the revolution, the new German republic with its build-up of 40 different parties.

"I became pessimistic when I saw the new movement that thrived but did not hold anything in which I had once believed," the cultural and high ideals that had always been a part of German history," declared Dr. Freund.

"I began to wonder what there was to live for. I still had the memory of the grandeur of the German race and thought that that had to come back but other people had forgotten about that. The youth had seen only shattered ideals and it was natural that they would try to cling to something entirely new and they assumed the national socialist philosophy as the religion of their life. I did not follow this belief. I was utterly pessimistic about politics and human nature. I could not see that a nation could ever recover by surface politics. I had a fanatic belief in a new life. The first time in my life, I became a believer in religion, good religion because I believe that unless there is responsibility to something above man, mankind will always be defeated."

Explains Belief

Dr. Freund then explained the fundamental belief of the national socialist theory which principle is based on the belief that the best expressed by Hitler when he said Nov. 21 that one man is responsible for and to the nation and in turn that nation follows and obeys him blindly. He spoke of the farcial aspects of the voting in Germany when there was but one man to vote for and abstention from voting meant extermination or imprisonment. He discussed the suppression of thought and ideas, of books, newspapers, etc. unless controlled definitely by the government.

You cannot make a fair investigation into Germany by a few weeks visit and talking with people. You have to live under the system and be allowed to peer into it," declared the speaker as he related many incidents of actual happenings to intellectual men of Germany and told of the spirit of denunciation and espionage which has arisen in Germany and which is really contrary to the German people. Everything and everyone not Nazi in Germany is Jewish.

In discussing the church situation in Germany, Dr. Freund said that while the German people are fundamentally a devout people, a party had worked fully along a program of denunciation to make the church obedient to the state. He told of experiences of eminent theologians in Germany who, when refusing to sign pledges of blind obedience to Adolf Hitler, were exiled. He said that Catholic and Lutheran churches and Jewish synagogues had always been subsidized in Germany as were all the universities but they were self governing, no strings were attached to those subsidies. Hitler is following the German tradition of subsidization but only as those churches agree to obey him, he said.

Vaccinations are Worry for Coach Of Neenah Cagers

Squad Will be Handicapped in League Tilt With Kaukauna Friday

Neenah — Besides battling a Kaukauna quintet here Friday night in a Northwestern Wisconsin conference basketball game, Neenah High school's cagers will be struggling with the effects of recent small pox vaccinations.

Also, two of the members of the cage team will not submit to the vaccinations because of their religion, and they will not be able to attend school 14 days, according to orders from the state board of health.

That's Coach Ole Jorgensen's big headache this week, and he has sufficient cause for worry. It took eight games before they swung in to full stride, gaining full momentum when they walloped Menasha, 37 to 19, here Friday.

The Rockets apparently were of championship timber, but they faltered twice in their eight games, winning six and losing two. One victory and a defeat were with non-conference schools.

Managing to climb into undisputed possession of second place, the Rockets were anticipating without too much concern winding up the first half of the schedule against Kaukauna sitting in a good spot to topple the league-leading Shawano aggregation when the new problem broke out.

"The only thing that is to wait and see how much effect these vaccinations will have upon the boys," Jorgensen said. "Vaccinations to date don't have the effect they had formerly, so we are hoping for the best," the coach added, but he lamented the fact that two of his men won't be in suits for the tilt.

According to the conference standings, Kaukauna will be 2-1, the only team with a winning record. The Rockets are 1-2, but when scores of previous games are perused, the Kaws have a potent team, its power probably not having been released as yet. The Kaws lost their first game to Shawano by five points, then dropped a game to New London by six points, lost to Menasha by five points, and then beat Clintonville, 27 to 17.

Lions to Map Plans For Spring Opening

Neenah — Plans for a spring opening program to start Feb. 22 will be discussed at a meeting of the board of directors of the Neenah Lions club at 7:45 Thursday morning at the Dodge cafe, it was announced at the noon meeting of the club Tuesday at the Valley Inn.

Donald McMahon introduced a motion to stage a spring opening program to last one week, the club to work with Neenah merchants in staging the program. He also suggested that a nationally known speaker be secured to talk here during the week.

The club voted to enter three teams in the Wisconsin State Bowling tournament which will be held in the Twin Cities from March 18 to May. The club's regular team will be entered in one of the upper brackets, while two booster teams, one captained by McMahon and the other by Floyd Bricknell, will also take part.

Neenah Council Votes to Build New City Garage

City Engineer Instructed To Prepare Plans For Structure

Neenah — Definite action was taken on the erection of a new city garage by the council at a meeting Tuesday night at the city hall, when Alderman Edward Schultz motioned to advertise for bids and to instruct the city engineer to draw plans and specifications for the structure.

The council also voted to secure prices on a new radio for the police squad car and advertise for bids for a small cement mixer.

Following a discussion on the feasibility of building a new garage on the city's property on Main street, Alderman Edward W. Schultz entered a motion to have City Engineer A. G. Prunuske draw plans and specifications for the structure. Suggesting that the city advertise for bids, Alderman Schultz recommended that the structure be built by the city instead of under a WPA project. Bricks taken from N. Commercial street will be used for the garage. The council voted in favor of the motion.

Seek Bids on Mixer

Upon Alderman Carl E. Loehning's motion, the council voted to advertise for bids for a 31 cubic foot cement mixer to be used in sidewalk and curb and gutter repair and building jobs next summer. He also informed the council the city needs a mudjack to remedy sagging of pavements and sidewalks and that later the committee on streets, sidewalks and bridges would ask for one.

The council also voted to get prices for a new police radio for the squad car. Alderman George MacDonald told the city fathers that the present radio doesn't function properly. The proposed set will cost approximately $110, he said.

Although Alderman Robert Martens objected to the planing of a 22-foot diameter pole to flag the city hall steps instead of 38-foot poles as called for in the contract, the council instructed the mayor and city clerk to settle payment with the contractors when the work is completed with the satisfaction of the building inspector. Alderman Schmidt entered the motion, and Aldermen Martens and Richard O'Brien opposed it.

Longer Than Old One

Mayor Kalfahs explained to the council that the new flag pole is two feet longer than the old one and that the error in the specifications was due to the first contractor who worked on the steeple. Alderman MacDonald said that he was in favor of allowing the present flag pole to stay on the steeple. He explained that "when Alderman Martens informed by the building inspector that the pole was shorter than called for in the specifications before the pole was erected, the alderman, who is chairman of the committee on parks and public buildings, did not reject its installation."

Alderman Emil C. Harder, chairman of the finance committee, reported that since the last council meeting the city incurred 88 bills amounting to $5,478.92. Mayor Kalfahs also reported that $3,200 of the 1937 appropriated fund to the Neenah-Menasha sewage commission was unexpended. The sum will not be returned to the city, but the city will deduct an equivalent amount from the 1938 appropriation.

The street commissioner was instructed to spread cinders at dangerous, icy intersections. The council passed a resolution expressing its appreciation of William Hoepfer and August Eberlein, recently pensioned firemen.

Neenah, Menasha Councils Enter 5 Teams in Tourney

Respective Councils to Match City Employees In State Pin Meet

Menasha — The opening of the Wisconsin State Bowling tournament on Neenah and Menasha alleys March 18 will resemble a Twin City battle as a result of action taken by the councils of the two cities at their respective meetings Tuesday evening.

Each council voted to sponsor five teams in the tournament, representing the aldermen, policemen, firemen and other city departments. The intention is to have Neenah aldermen bowl Menasha aldermen, Neenah firemen to bowl Menasha firemen and so on in the opening of the tournament.

W. J. Pierce spoke at the Menasha council meeting to request the support of the city fathers. He compared the coming tournament with the one 20 years ago when the Twin Cities were hosts. Then some 350 teams entered the tournament and Neenah and Menasha entered about 50 each. This year they are expected to enter 300.

More than 1,300 teams are expected to participate this year with approximately 7,000 individual participants. The tourney will run weekends through March into April when daily bowling will be held. Pierce pictured the benefits which will be derived by the two cities from the tourney. He also mentioned that the city teams would be competing in the booster division, in which 60 per cent of the entry fee is returned in prizes.

Alderman Clement Newcomb introduced the resolution sponsoring the Menasha teams. The motion was seconded by Alderman C. J. Oberweiser, who asked to be excused from bowling with the same team which entered Fox River Valley tourney at Fond du Lac last week. The alderman team had a 2,139 total at Fond du Lac and evidently Oberweiser didn't think much of their efforts.

Mayor Edwin A. Kalfahs recommended that the Neenah council help back the event and also pictured the size and value of the tourney. Alderman Richard O'Brien was placed in charge of the Neenah city entries.

Kloepfel Issues Challenge To Old Time Ice Speedsters

Menasha — Otto Kloepfel, 822 Broad street, Menasha's skater who will be 66 years old this winter, like Alexander the Great is mourning that there are no more warriors to conquer. He has again issued his annual challenge to any skater of his age but has found no one who will accept his challenge.

The skater has received an invitation to participate in a special old timers race at a meet to be held at Oconomowoc on Feb. 19 and 20. Kloepfel would take part in a relay against Pete Dube, 59-year old skater from Escanaba, Mich. Kloepfel has not decided whether or not he will participate in the meet.

He was out skating last Sunday but reported that the ice was poor. He still uses clamp skates which he fastens to ordinary shoes although he once tried hockey shoe skates but found them difficult to manage.

Recalls Matches

Reminiscing about past skating events, Kloepfel recalled that two years ago he defeated Miller of Hortonville at Kaukauna. Miller was 63 and Kloepfel was 64 at the time. Last year when no skater would accept Kloepfel's challenge, Art Scholl, speed skater of no mean ability, challenged Kloepfel. As he was much younger, Scholl offered to skate backward and was defeated by the veteran in a half-mile race. Kloepfel is a "left-footed" skater; that is, he naturally makes turns to the right more easily than turns to the left. That amounts to quite a handicap over a short course with many turns as he has to coast around the turns and make up speed on the straightaway.

If anyone accepts his challenge, he'd like to run the race with half of the laps to the right and half to the left to equalize the advantage on the turns. However he won't make an issue of the matter if there is a race. "It's great sport," Kloepfel declares, "and my challenge, still stands to any skater my age."

Council Shows Faith in Work of Education Board

Votes Against Public Hearing on Accusations of Extravagance

Menasha — The city council showed its faith in the board of education at its meeting Tuesday night when it refused to pass a motion for a hearing of the board before the council and public on charges of extravagance. Alderman George Zielski introduced a resolution calling for a hearing after a communication from the board announcing its preparedness to meet charges of extravagance at a public hearing.

The board action followed a stormy session of the council Jan. 4 at which William Jensen, member of the board of education, made numerous accusations. A silence of several moments followed Zielski's motion. Alderman Clement Newcomb stated that he felt the council had full faith in the board and there was no need for the council to hold a hearing. If the board felt that they wanted a hearing with the public, that was their concern, according to Newcomb.

Zielski said that he felt that the council had interfered with the board's powers when they selected the school site and therefore should not dodge their duty now. The choice of a school site was one of the matters brought up by Jensen at the previous meeting.

All But Two Opposed — After another pause, Alderman Philip Michalkiewicz seconded Zielski's motion. On the roll call only Zielski and Michalkiewicz favored a hearing, all other aldermen voting no. Alderman Earl Sauter was absent.

The council concluded its business in 45 minutes last night and then adjourned to visit the new high school building on invitation of the board of education. Communications from the vocational board and the board of education expressing thanks to the council for the use of temporary quarters were read. Four furnaces installed by the school board in the municipal garage were turned over to the council.

City Attorney Edward C. McKenzie brought in a report on claims for damages against the city. Claims of Frank J. Thalke and Mrs. Ernest Messman for damages as a result of falls on icy sidewalks were not allowed. Dewey VanBuskirk, Appleton, claimed damages because the tires of his car were cut on a catch basin at Fifth and Appleton streets. His claim also was not allowed.

Notice on Sidewalks — Claims of the Bell Auto company for moving a wrecked airplane were referred to the owner. The street committee was instructed to issue proper notice to the public to keep the sidewalks cleaned.

The attorney reported the city was liable only when the sidewalks were not cleaned for three weeks. Two new claims for damages were presented to the council and referred to the city attorney. Frances Domagalski claimed damages for a broken arm received in a fall on the sidewalk at Fourth and Appleton streets Jan. 8. Max Novakowski claimed damages for a broken leg his son received at a city skating rink on Jan. 1.

The Twin City sewage commission reported a surplus of $6,400 in its operating fund for 1937 and gave the city permission to deduct its share, $3,200, from the 1938 allowance.

Grant License — The finance committee was authorized to act concerning the insurance on the city's fleet of trucks which will expire March 3. A bartender's license was granted Bernard Smalinski.

A new motorcycle and sidecar were purchased from the National Cycle and Repair company, Oshkosh, for $105.70. The old motorcycle was damaged when the gas feed stuck and the cycle failed to round a curve last fall.

At a meeting of the board of public works before the council meeting action was withheld on the petition of Ralph Schneider to establish a beer depot in the Fourth ward. Some objections were entered and Schneider was given time to circulate a new petition.

Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Ready to Go

The thousands of people who suffer from indigestion, constipation, flatulence, and other ailments, are often told to "wake up their liver and bile." This is a false statement. The liver and bile are not "asleep" and do not need "waking up." The only way to keep the liver and bile in good health is to keep the system clean and free from impurities. This is done by taking a small dose of a reliable laxative, such as the Little Liver Pills, which are gentle and effective. They will keep the bowels regular and the system healthy. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. 25c. Stubbornly refuse anything else.

Your food doesn't digest and you have gas, heartburn, nausea, pain or sour stomach. You feel uncomfortable and upset all over.

Last Week

Hesitancy seems to be the keynote of the steel market, buyers delaying purchases until more definite indications of the future appear, says Steel.

In the case of railroads it is because of the pending freight rate hearings. Agricultural implement manufacturers seem to be in best position, with production at a good rate. Automobile output shows a slight increase. In some instances it seems steel consumers have fairly large stocks of finished articles and defer further activity until these are moved.

Hold Off Buying
Railroads continue to hold off buying except for urgent requirements. Some cars and locomotives, usually in small lots, are being placed and some foreign business in this line has been booked. Plans to expedite the decision of the interstate commerce commission on the petition for a freight rate increase give hope of releases during March as programs are understood to have been outlined and held back until the financial situation can be judged more accurately. Incentive of this hesitancy is the drawal of the inquiry of the Western Maryland for 1100 cars on which bids had been taken. It is understood a large eastern road has a program for repair of some 24,000 freight cars which is being withheld until the rate situation is cleared.

Upward Tendency
Steelmaking shows an upward tendency and last week rose 3 points to 29 per cent. This is the second rise since the low mark of 21 per cent the first week in January. Most centers showed an increase in activity or held to the rate of the preceding week. Chicago gained 2 points to 26.5 per cent. Youngstown 1 to 25. Wheeling 9 to 35. Detroit 19 to 52. New England 7 to 26. Cincinnati resumed at 28 per cent after a week of complete idleness. There was no change in the central eastern seaboard district at 31. Birmingham 63. Buffalo 23 and St. Louis 21. Pittsburgh lost 1 point to 24.5 per cent and Cleveland 2 to 24.

Subsidy agreements made and in the making by the maritime commission provide for construction of 20 to perhaps 64 ships during the next four years. Requirements of steel for this program will be spread over a considerable period but adds to the prospective tonnage mills will be called on to supply. Construction of some of the ships will be undertaken during the present year.

Auto Output Increases
Automobile assemblies last week gained more than 11,000 over the preceding period as Chrysler resumed more normal operations. Total output was 65,735, compared with 54,084 the week before. General Motors produced 22,160, against 22,425; Chrysler built 13,975, compared with 27,500; Ford held steady with 22,765 units. Independent builders assembled 6,835, compared with 6,144 the week before.

Shipments of finished steel by the United States Steel Corp. in December repeated the pattern of other activity indexes, showing a decline from November but an increase of 18 per cent for the entire year, compared with 1936. Great Britain in December established a record in production of pig iron, making 783,000 tons, the largest tonnage since 1912. A month previously an all-time high was made in production of steel ingots and castings.

For the seventh consecutive week Steel's composite of steelworks scrap prices shows an advance, rising 7 cents, to $13.00, on stronger quotations at Pittsburgh. Effect of export demand in the East is believed responsible for some of this strength. Due to advances in scrap prices the iron and steel composite is unchanged at $61.70.

Schedule Hearing on Milwaukee Water Rates

Madison — A hearing on water service rates in the city of Milwaukee and its suburbs was scheduled by the public service commission Tuesday for Feb. 2 in Madison. The hearing was expected to be the last of a series sponsored by the commission preliminary to an order permanently reviewing rates for the area. The city has voluntarily reduced rates $300,000 for several years.

Complaints against a flat rate schedule, which ignores the customary practice of rewarding users for increased consumption, prompted the commission's recent order that temporary rates would be effective until a thorough revision can be made.

The commission authorized Trempealeau village, Lacrosse county, to establish a water plant and to proceed immediately with digging a new well to cost about $1,650.

Defer Selection of New Head for College

Post-Crescent: Madison Bureau Madison — E. G. Doudna, Madison, secretary of the board of normal school regents, has announced that the selection of a new president for the state teachers' college at Stevens Point has been deferred for a month. President Frank Hyer of the college has been asked to stay his resignation pending the selection of a successor. Doudna said. A special committee of the board of regents, which met here last week, will meet again in February to consider the large number of candidates for the position.

Seek to Reduce Interest Rate on HOLC Mortgages

Wisconsin Progressives Band Together in Fight for Bill

Post-Crescent Washington Bureau
Washington—The Wisconsin Progressive congressional delegation has decided, at a conference in the office of Senator Robert M. LaFollette, Jr., to lead the fight to force a vote to measure to establish a moratorium on foreclosures by the Home Owners Loan Corporation and to reduce interest rates.

John H. Fahey, chairman of the HOLC board and the Home Loan Bank board, vigorously opposes this proposal, and says that the very proposal has caused persons who could pay on their homes to stop payments, in the hopes of a "moratorium on foreclosures" and reduced interest.

The conference in Senator LaFollette's office was addressed by Ben Marvin, of Racine, Wis., an organizer for the State Home Owners Protective association. Congressman Thomas R. Amle of Elkhorn, most radical of the Wisconsin Progressives, says he arranged the conference. Marvin is his constituent. Congressman Gerald J. Boyleau of Wausau, floor leader for the Progressive-Farmer-Labor conference, says the meeting pledged itself to support the measure.

"Five per cent is an unjustifiably high rate to charge home owners," said Amle, "at a time when the interest paid on the total government debt, old and new, is less than 2 per cent."

"We propose that home owners shall pay only slightly more than the average cost of capital to the government, and that the period for repayment shall more nearly equal the useful life of the mortgaged home."

Various bills along these lines have been introduced, but have been buried in committees.

The Progressives, and others of the same mind, are busy signing a discharge petition to blast one of the bills out of the committee.

Communications To Congressmen Favor Ludlow Bill

Wisconsin Legislators Deluged With Letters Supporting Measure

BY RUBY A. BLACK
Washington—The question of whether the people shall have the right to vote in a referendum on a declaration of war is the latest of current issues in the minds of Wisconsin people. If letters, telegrams, and petitions received by the senators and congressmen from Wisconsin are indexes to public opinion.

Although the question has not actually been before the senate for a vote, both Wisconsin senators find their mail consists predominantly of correspondence concerning the war referendum, most of it favoring the proposal, which involves an amendment to the constitution.

Senator Robert M. LaFollette, Jr., of Madison, who has proposed a constitutional amendment on the subject which was the model for revision of the Ludlow resolution (defeated last Monday), says he has received more communication from backers on this subject than on any other during this session.

Sen. F. E. Dunbar of Fond du Lac says his mail is "virtually all" about the war referendum issue, and most of the letter support it, and ask him to support it.

In the house of representatives, the situation is the same, again with the preponderance of communications supporting it.

On the other hand, the "Little Congress," consisting of secretaries of senators and congressmen, debated the issue the other night, and the vote was 40 against to 2 for, with Ray Zuehlke of Appleton, secretary to Schneider, being one of the two to support it.

Telephone Firm Would Continue Lower Rates

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
Madison—The Farmers Independent Telephone company of Shawano is still awaiting a return of prosperity, officers told the state public service commission this week when they asked authorization to continue in effect temporarily reduced rates during 1938.

During the unhappy period around 1933 and 1934, many of the smaller rural telephone companies were permitted to reduce their charges in order to keep their customers. This year many of them are seeking to continue in effect those reductions.

American States Japanese Fliers Hit Dummy Planes

Nanchang, China—An American aviation mechanic who says his name is "Just Alabam," because that's where he came from, told today how Japanese bombers have been destroying so many "Chinese planes" lately.

"They're keeping a Chinese carpenter busy at the airfield, making wooden dummy planes," Alabam said. "The Chinese go out at night and put them in field that look like airfields, then the Japanese come along the next day and blow them up. They must have blown up an awful lot of them."

Winter Sports Program For City Suggested in B. and P. Club Discussion

A PANEL DISCUSSION on Appleton's needs from the standpoint of conservation, playgrounds, directed recreation, women in public office, adult education and city forums, and city planning took place at the meeting of Appleton Business and Professional Women's club Tuesday night at Conway hotel. Mrs. Nancy Thomas presided and introduced each speaker who was limited to five minutes, after which a general discussion was held.

Mrs. Floyd Foor, speaker for the conservation program, suggested that the parks be developed for winter sports and that the natural ravines in the city be used for that purpose instead of for receiving places for tin cans and refuse. She said that dead trees should be removed from the parks and suggested the building of outdoor fireplaces in some, a wading pool in the city park and city-owned boats at Lutz park. She also recommended bird feeding stations in all parks and private yards.

Speaking for playgrounds in Appleton, Mrs. S. C. Shannon said that this project would provide a healthful outlet for children during vacation periods and a worth-while use of leisure time, and pointed out that it would save the city money because playgrounds would result in less petty crime which leads to major crimes. The program, she continued, would include adults as well as children and would be year-round instead of just in the summer. She explained that the Wisconsin law permits a tax of up to 8-10 of a mill for recreational purposes. Mrs. Shannon pointed to Milwaukee which has a nearly perfect recreational program and which has one of the lowest crime rates in the country.

Directed recreation was the subject of a talk by Miss Hilda Kippenhan who said that a well-planned directed recreational program would solve the problem of many retarded children. Directed recreation develops fellowship and good will, she added, stating that such a program would include not only sports and athletics but also handwork, art, drama and music appreciation, and dancing. To carry out such a program, she said, workers of high caliber are needed, and one should be a man. She suggested the use of school buildings for meeting places for the buildings are already there. The program should be planned for a long period ahead, she went on.

Suggests Women on Board
Pointing out that 90 per cent of the school teachers are women, Miss Mabel Sibley said that there should be a woman on the school board, in her talk on "Women in Public Office." She went on to say that when women go into public office they should not try to do the work of a man, but ought to supplement it, and she suggested that if a woman has the ability and qualifications to hold public office and is ambitious to run for that office, the women of the community ought to support her.

Forums are a means of passing on information somewhat painlessly, Miss Kezia Manifold said in her talk on adult education and city forums. Defining adult education as a life-long attitude of inquiry, research, and acceptance of truths learned, she said that many people take the attitude that when one is out of school one is past education. Forums, she added, bring community problems out into the open for discussion with a view to action on these problems.

A map of the city showing some of the buildings which she thinks Appleton needs, drawn up by Mrs. E. F. Carroll, was presented by Miss Nabee Stern in the absence of Mrs. Carroll. These buildings included a new union depot at the junction, a swimming pool and athletic field across from the new high school, a city hall and library on the present site of Lincoln school, a new orthopedic school in the city park and a new apartment building on the Riverview Country club property.

A survey among Appleton girls from high school age through 21 years to determine opportunities offered them alone business, cultural and other lines will be conducted by Appleton Business and Professional Women's club, it was decided at the meeting last night. The extent of the survey will be determined by the committee in charge which is headed by Mrs. Nancy Thomas, but it will include in particular those girls who do not go on to college after high school.

Announcement was made of a Valentine party to be held Feb. 11 at Appleton Woman's club. The club chorus sang two selections at the meeting last night.

North street, to Chester Roberts was announced at the formal dance which her sorority, Alpha Delta Pi, gave Saturday night at the Masonic temple. ## Hollywood Sights and Sounds

BY ROBBIN COONS

Hollywood—Their names seldom go up on the marquees, but in every picture they—or actors like them—contribute to the film-goer's entertainment.

Some draw large salaries and are eagerly sought for supporting casts.

They belong to the little army of "character actors"—and frequently "steal" scenes from the stars.

But how well do you really know them? Can you supply the names of these typical "characters" without peeking at the answers below?

1. He's "that funny little fellow" to millions. Once he appeared with Mary Pickford—and many other stars—on the Broadway stage. He's of French-English descent, born in London, and his first picture-making (silent) was done in Brooklyn.

2. In pictures she looks this way infrequently. She's a stage star, and a prominently featured player in pictures. Last year, in a film that was an artistic success and a financial failure, she had the leading feminine role.

3. His picture work has been little, to date, but in one famous picture last year his characterization stood out among a whole collection of character portraits. He's a native of Moscow, from the Moscow art theater and has been called in academic circles "the world's greatest actor."

4. On the stage he played serious roles, with such dramatic actresses as Nazimova, Pauline Frederick. Once he was Messala in "Ben Hur." But in pictures, where he's been 11 years, his appearance brings audience giggles. He's a smoothie, a flatterer, a laugh-getter.

5. This Welshman studied to be a doctor, but now — by virtue of a long career in the theater — he knows all the stories about the stage, but practically none about operations. In Hollywood he produced plays before the camera began insisting that he get in front.

- ANSWERS
1. Etienne Girardot ("The Great Garrick").
  2. Beulah Bondi ("Make Way for Tomorrow").
  3. Vladimir Sokoloff ("Emile Zola").
  4. Franklin Pangborn ("Bluebeard's Eighth Wife").
  5. E. E. Clive ("Danger — Love at Work").

"We of the medical profession, both in United States and Canada, are naturally interested in the new Foundation for Infantile Paralysis as created by your great president, Franklin D. Roosevelt. Through such a foundation, supported by funds of your citizens, the nationwide battle against infantile paralysis can best be waged. I know this from my own experience."

The dispute between publishers and printers of the Oregonian, the Oregon Journal and the News Telegram is over wages, hours and arbitration.

24 County Agents Given Approval By U. W. Regents

Agricultural Extension
Chief Authorized to Review
Recommendations

Madison — (AP)—University of Wisconsin regents have authorized Warren W. Clark, director of agricultural extension, to review recommendations of local committees on appointments of county agricultural agents and designate nominees he believes incompetent.

The board laid down after approval of policy yesterday after approving appointments of 24 agents whose qualifications had been challenged by Regent Kenneth Hones, Colfax. Hones charged that some agents "are absolutely detrimental to the interests of the farmers."

Heretofore, the board was informed by Clark, it has been the policy of university officials to submit to the regents without question the recommendations of county agricultural committees on such appointments.

Hones charged that agents in some counties are opposed to co-operatives, are generally incompetent and are "tools of big business."

Although the regents declined to withhold confirmation of the 24 nominees, many of them seeking reappointment, they made it clear that the appointments could be revoked if the agents' work was found unsatisfactory.

Those whose appointment or reappointment was confirmed were: Earl A. Polley, Racine; Roy T. Glasco, Rock; Harrison R. Noble, Portage; J. F. Thomas, Waukesha; George M. O'Connor, Crawford; Manly Sharp, Juneau; Abraham L. McMahon, Calumet; Laurence J. Hovick, Kaukauna; Harold A. Hovick, Columbia; Robert V. Hurley, Dane; Wallace J. Lander, Clark; Glenn W. Lyman, Sheboygan; George F. Massey, Waupaca; J. Earl Stallard, Dodge; Walter D. Bean, Jackson; Jesse I. Etheridge, Oconto; P. B. Eves, Eau Claire; Robert C. Heffernan, Winnebago; J. O. Hembre, Barron; Hans G. Hovick, Chippewa; Charles H. Karch, Sauk; R. Coburn, Ralph; Douglas; Oscar G. Wolfel, Pepin; and John Zalorik, Buffalo.

Vote Reimbursement

The board also voted to reimburse about 400 low-paid university employees whose salaries were reduced below the $75 a month civil service minimum during the 1937 depression. Restorations, totalling about $60,000, will be made as soon as judgments based on a recent ruling by Judge Alvin C. Reis are entered in Dane county circuit court.

Judge Reis upheld the legality of the Cashman act, adopted by the 1937 legislature, which appropriated $10,700 for waiver restoration of employees who were paid on specific appropriations and instructed the regents to make a similar adjustment on salaries paid from the revolving fund.

Before approving the resolution introduced by board President Harold Wilkie, Madison, the regents rejected a proposal by regent Daniel Grady, Portage, that salary waivers be restored to civil service employees in all classifications at an estimated expenditure of $545,665.

Although Judge Reis' decision left the way open for possible recovery of almost $6,000,000 by employees of all state departments, the executive board of the Wisconsin State Employees' association indicated that they do not intend to sue recovery would be made until the 1939 session of the legislature.

"At the present time it is the opinion of the executive board that recovery suits by individual state employees or groups of state employees should be discouraged," a resolution adopted by the board stated.

Survey Results Show Dad Spends More Than Mother for Clothing

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
Madison — Dad, in a typical low income Wisconsin family, spends more for clothing each year than mother.

That's on the authority of a recently concluded investigation conducted by members of the staff of the state university's department of economics.

Pointing out that the manner in which families handle their expenditures for clothing is a subject about which comparatively little is known, and that a better understanding of it is needed if relief workers, teachers, and other social workers are to aid families in planning their budgets in the most economical manner, the three state specialists reported their findings on the clothing expenditures of 105 Central Wisconsin families.

These families, whose size averaged four persons each, got along on an average of $95.40 for clothing during a typical year, and during that year their income averaged $813. About 37 per cent of the reported foodstuffs produced at home, rather than cash expenditures. The cash outlay averaged $511.

The typical family's clothing budget looked like this: outer wear, 48.5 per cent; footwear, 28 per cent; underwear and nightwear, 23 per cent; accessories, 6.2 per cent; miscellaneous, including headwear, cleaning and repairing, 3.6 per cent.

Fathers spent $26.37 of the total clothing allowance, mothers $23.30. Sons 25 years of age or older were the heaviest spenders, averaging $36.26, while daughters from 18 to 24 years were second with $31.56 each.

The study showed that it is easier to economize on women's clothes than on men's, for as the size of the household increased, the study revealed, the amount going to the mother's clothing declined sharply, while the father's remained the same.

The families studied lived in the low income area in central Wisconsin where much of the land has since been purchased by the federal government with the aim of moving the inhabitants to more promising localities. Two thirds of the group represented farm residents, while the others were village wage earners' families.

Mother Dies, Girl Seriously Wounded In Mystery Attack

Minneapolis—(AP)—Mrs. Goldie Rosen, 54, died in a hospital today from a mysterious attack and her daughter, Bernice, a high school girl, lay unconscious and in serious condition as a result of the same assault.

Authorities were unable immediately to find a motive for the attack, since Mrs. Rosen's purse was found in her room and no other valuables were missing.

The girl was found on her bed. Her mother's body was found at the foot of the basement steps, indicating, police said, that she had tried to escape. Mrs. Rosen died without being able to describe the attack.

Lawrence Drops Close Game to Beloit Five

Defeat Ousts Vikings From Midwest Conference Lead
MISS FREE THROWS
Loss of Buesing in Last 5 Minutes Also Hurts

BY GORDON MCINTYRE
BASKETBALL games can be lost for the darnedest reasons—

Lawrence college basketball team last night dropped a 37 to 36 decision to Beloit college in one of the wildest and most sensational games Alexander gymnasium has seen in many months and the reason probably, I said "probably" was due to an error in the scoring which cost the Vikes Ken Buesing in the last five minutes and generally demoralized the offense with Lawrence holding a 33 to 29 edge.

When Buesing and Jim Brown tangled on the floor over a free ball late in the game, the official scorer, Lawrence's scorer, announced that both had collected four persons while my own score sheet and play by play report showed Buesing with only three. There were others, including about half the folks in the hall, who could recall only three persons—and one technical—on the Vike guard but he had to leave the game. And when he went out, the following shifts in the Lawrence lineup threw an offense that had been doing quite well in a cocked hat.

Miss Free Throws
But there might also have been another reason and a much more valid one, for the Vike defeat. Lawrence outscored Beloit from the floor but in the second half missed a terrific number of free throws and the Gold won the game on free tosses. Beloit had a record total of 22 fouls to 16 for Lawrence yet it was the world's hardest game for Lawrence to lose and if the squad had a good cry afterwards, and if Art Denney rolled and kicked around in his bed last night and continued for a week, they can't be blamed. The only consolation one can find is in the remark Denney made early this season—"We may not win them all but we'll give someone a helluva battle." It was just that.

The defeat was the first for Lawrence in Midwest conference play

Vike Yearlings Lose to Beloit

Score Is 38 to 31; Invaders Show Class And Speed

Lawrence college freshman basketball team learned that Beloit college will have a pretty fair varsity squad next year, when the Vike yearlings dropped a 38 to 31 decision to the Gold yearlings. Lawrence took an early lead but it wilted under the downstaters' attack which had speed to burn and considerable class. The second half of the contest produced almost as much entertainment and as many thrills as the varsity game.

Karl Luedtke set the pace for the Lawrence scorers with five field goals and two gift shots while Lloyd got three field goals and two gift shots. However, both men missed a dozen easy tries. Bowles, a guard who streaked across the floor, got 12 points for Beloit as did Smith, a forward.

The box score:

	Beloit	FT	P	Lawrence	FT	P
Talbot	1	0	2	Hutchins	1	0
Smith	6	0	1	Lillard	5	2
Chisholm	1	0	1	McDonell	1	0

For the Loafers, R. Koenn rolled a 511 series and a 195 game while Duce Weyenberg rolled a 491 series. J. Helf rolled a 179 game for the Chiselers.

High team series was a 2,151 for the Loafers.

YES, IT WAS THAT EXCITING
Lawrence college basketball team lost a thriller to Beloit here last night, 37 to 36, and naturally the most excited gentleman in the house was Coach Arthur C. Denney. Along about the last five minutes of play when Denney was watching a 7-point Lawrence lead slip away he almost ascended through the ceiling and the photographer snapped him in the above moment of taking off. Needless to say Denney was watching one of his boys do something wrong defensively for the ball was under the Beloit basket. (Post-Crescent Photo)

Braddock to Pin Fistic Future on Legs Against Farr

Former Champion Objects To Being Called 'Aged Veteran'

BY DREW MIDDLETON
NEW YORK—(AP)—Jim Braddock's fistic obituary has been written so often that most of the time the big Jerseyman doesn't bother to deny it.

But the boys have been ringing in the "aged veteran" angle a bit too much while Jim prepares for his ten round go with Tommy Farr Friday night, and Jim is taking the stand in his own defense.

He is especially peeved to find the experts rating his chances with Tommy off their respective showings against Joe Louis. As everyone knows the shuffler knocked out Jim in eight rounds but went the limit against Farr to take the decision.

Carrying Burden
"When it comes to comparing us on those fights there are a couple of points that should be considered," says Jim. "When I faced Joe it was my first fight in two years and nine days. And when you go into the ring with the title you are carrying a burden."

"Louis found the difference it makes in your fighting when you are in there fighting for the title and when you are defending it. Joe was a better fighter against me than against Farr, if only for the reason he had more to lose against Tommy than when he met me."

Braddock will pin his faith and fistic future on a stout pair of legs and a stouter heart when he meets Farr.

He is one of the old, hard-fighting race of fighters; the old order of Irish champions that included John L. Sullivan and Jake Kilrain; the first Jack Dempsey, the nonpareil; Terry McGovern; the second Jack Dempsey and Gene Tunney.

Has Heart to Win
His camp at Pompton lakes has some of the flavor of those days. No sports coat for Jim. He wears flannel shirts and likes the heavy horsplay that Dempsey loved.

Jim and Joe could, his manager, believe his legs are as good as ever, good enough to discount the nine years or more he will give away to Farr. They think he is a better hitter than the Welshman and a smarter ringman.

But it is his heart that will make him a sentimental favorite. The fight fans say, tapping their chests, "He has it here."

He proved it once when he spearheaded Max Baer for 15 rounds with long lefts, won the title and broke the hoary tradition: "They never come back" after bitter months on the docks and on relief. He proved it again when he carried the fight to Louis' dynamite-laden gloves and knocked him down in the second round.

His story is one of courage against the obstacles that have sent hundreds of fighters into oblivion. The story dies hard.

Halladay's Hold Edge at Seymour

Meets Second Place Muehl Quintet in Match This Week

Seymour—Halladay's Bowling team held its own this week when it took two games from the Hotel Falck team. The Muehl Furniture team, which is in second place, has an opportunity to tie the Halladay team for first place if it can win all three games when they meet the leaders in a contest this week.

The Seymour Tavern team, after some practicing this week, was able to take three straight from the Terraplane team, with no game lower than 700. Last week they lost two to Hotel Falck, with one game as low as 617. The week previous their low was 602 and their high game only 617. That week all three games were lost to Stanley Tavern team.

'Old Pete' Alexander Joins Ranks Of Baseball Immortals by Big Vote

BY GAYLE TALBOT
NEW YORK—(AP)—Baseball's solemnly elected immortals shoved over on their pedestals today and welcomed their newest member, one of the best loved of them all, Grover Cleveland Alexander.

"Old Pete," the great pitcher, who stood big league batters on their heads for 20 years, joins the select little group enshrined in the Hall of Fame at Cooperstown, N. Y., by a flattering vote of the Baseball Writers' Association of America.

Of 117 players of the past who received at least one vote in this year's poll, Alex was the only one to be named on the necessary 75 per cent of the ballots. Needing 197 votes for election, he received 212.

Others Are Close
Three other bygone stars fell just short, George Sisler getting 179 votes, Wee Willie Keeler 177 and Eddie Collins 175. One, possibly two of them, should make the grade next year. Others who trailed Alexander included Babe Waddell, 148; Frank Chance, 133; Ed Delahanty, 132; Ed Walsh, 110, and Johnny Evers, 91.

Those whom Alexander joins in baseball's temple are Ty Cobb, Babe Ruth, Honus Wagner, Christy Mathewson, Walter Johnson, Napoleon Lajoie, Tris Speaker and Cy Young, all named in past ballots of the baseball writers as the game's outstanding players since 1900.

Major league club owners in joint session recently added two great managers, Connie Mack and John McGraw; the first National league president, Morgan Bulkeley; the organizer of the American league, Ban Johnson, and George Wright, pioneer player and manager.

Alexander's election is certain to strike a popular chord. There had been grumblings because he was not named earlier, and a belief by some that he might never attain the honor because he was, toward the sunset of his career, a very rugged individualist of the diamond, a man who didn't worry about training rules.

Alex, like many another old-timer, has had tough sledding since his major league epilogue with the Phillies in 1936. After pitching in five games for Dallas in the Texas league later that season, he finally left organized baseball at the age of 43, and since then has been about 44, and country with the House of David and other semi-pro outfits. He manages his own club now at Springfield, Ill.

Kept Ball Low
But he was a wonder while he had it, for 20 years after he joined the Phillies as a big, freckle-faced kid in 1911. He never had tre-

Volleyball Team In League Contest

New London Squad to Meet Appleton Y. M. C. A. Players

APPLETON'S class B team in the Fox River Valley Volleyball league will open the season's play at 8:30 this evening against New London at the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium following a basketball tilt at 7:35 between the Fox River Paper company quintet and the Phillips "66" squad of Oshkosh.

The volleyball committee of the Y. M. C. A., composed of Robert Heiss, chairman, Bert Norling, the Rev. C. M. Schendel and Franklin Jesse, met recently and chose teams to represent the association in both class A and class B divisions.

The class B team personnel follows: Set up men, Dr. G. N. Carlson, Robert Potter, Byron Powers, Harvey Kahler, Orville Wanser and Gerhard Vogt; killers, Carleton Fuert, the Rev. C. M. Schendel, Dr. R. V. Landis, Arthur Schade, Mark Catlin and Alfred Bradford.

Players for class A competition include: Set up men, Robert Heiss, Frank Hammer, Bert Norling, Gerald Hoffman, Milton Schwandt; killers, Eugene Mullen, Percy Menning, Carl Kozlek, Edward Krause and Harold Schroeder.

The schedule has been arranged so that one of the Appleton league teams will play on the home court either Wednesday or Friday night each week.

Three Appleton Leather Pushers to Show Ability

THE CARD
Savior Canadeo, Chicago, versus Duke Stanton, Racine, five rounds at 145 pounds.

Johnnie Anderson, Chicago versus Phil Dobbins, Green Bay, five rounds at 140 pounds.

Gordon Jungwirth, Oshkosh, versus Wilbur Ketzman, Big Falls, three rounds at 158 pounds.

Al Robbins, Oshkosh, versus Clifford Lutz, Appleton, three rounds at 135 pounds.

Ken Allmers, Oshkosh, versus Karl Kopischke, Green Bay, three rounds at 190 pounds.

John Dux, Fond du Lac, versus Ed Kizor, Pulaski, three rounds at 185 pounds.

Leon Toonen, Appleton, versus Bub Jacobs, Appleton, three rounds at 115 pounds.

H. EADLINED by a couple St. Norbert college boxers and showing several other boys who like to trade leather and hang K. O. punches, Oney Johnston post of the American Legion will present its first card of the new year at 8:30 Thursday evening at Armory G. There will be seven bouts, two windups and five supporting bouts.

Savior Canadeo, St. Norbert college and Chicago C. Y. O. performer and twice member of Chicago golden gloves teams, will meet Stanley "Duke" Stanton, Racine, in the final go of the evening. Canadeo's ability is more than known locally and he usually turns in as entertaining a piece of work as you want to see.

Stanton will be making his first start locally but reports on him are that he has all kinds of ability. On New Year's day he lost a close decision to a colored boy from Chicago, one James Phagan who had too much reach and height for him.

Johnnie Anderson, the acme in boxing perfection heretofore, and another St. Norbert student, will take on Phil Dobbins in the other windup go. The two fought some time ago with Phil much too cautious. He has promised Matchmaker Leslie Holzer that he's come to the conclusion he'll have to mix to stay in the amateur game and that he'll give Anderson a real battle. Dobbins now lives in Green Bay and was signed to replace Roy Vidovitch who has been unable to train because of extra hours on a job.

Gordon Jungwirth, Oshkosh, who hits with the best and can take it, too, will meet Wilbur Ketzman of Big Falls in the fifth go. They will come in at about 158 pounds. Ketzman is under the tutelage of "Windy" Thomas, New London boxer of a few years back, and the latter claims his "find" fights just like that New London sensation of a couple years ago, Herbie Thompson. That's a big compliment for any fighter but it's so the fans will be standing up cheering before the bout has gone three minutes.

At Robbins, Oshkosh, will clash with Chippy Lutz, Appleton, at 138 pounds in what will be Lutz' hardest test. The Appleton boxer asked for Robbins and has trained hard for this bout. Robbins has a punch but Lutz aims to prove he's acquired one, too, in the last four months.

Ken Allmers, Oshkosh, and Karl Kopischke, a guard at the state reformatory, will be the heavyweights coming in at 190 pounds. They may not move around like dancers but when they connect you'll hear it out in the last row of the bleachers. It's just about certain someone will be on the floor before they get through tossing leather.

Another heavyweight go that may steal the show for knock-down-drag-out leather tossing will send John Dux, Fond du Lac, against Ed Kizor, Pulaski. They are to weigh in at 185. Dux has appeared here in a couple bouts and the fact Kizor comes from Pulaski is enough to label him a tough lad.

The curtain will go up on a couple 112-pounders from Appleton. They are Leon Toonen, from the Third ward, and a novice division golden gloves tillist at Green Bay last year, and Bob Jacobs, from the Fourth ward. Jacobs has been appearing regularly this season and won by a K. O. last trip. Toonen has been missing from the ring since last spring.

Wednesday, Kaukauna versus Hortonville (at Stephensville hall).

LITTLE CHUTE Legion basketball team won the first round championship of the Outagamie County Basketball league last night when it defeated Town Tax 33 to 31.

Previously the teams were defeated.

In the other game last night Company D defeated Black Creek, 38 to 28. The league completes the first round of play this evening when Kaukauna Knights of Columbus play Hortonville at Stephensville hall.

Beany Bongers led the Legion squad on offense with four baskets followed by Pete Wildenberg and Tony Jansen with three baskets each. O. Bongers and H. Van Dyke played stellar ball although not figuring heavily in the scoring.

Ehlike Gets 14 Points
For the Taxis, Red Ehlike was the whole offense with 14 points. He got four field goals and six free throws. Beany Bongers made a great showing after he recovered the game in the third quarter after being forced out in the first by a knee injury. He scored seven points. Hammer, stocky Taxi guard, was the outstanding defensive player for the Taxis.

The scoring opened with O. Bongers dumping in a free throw for Little Chute. Ehlike tossed a free throw for the Taxis but Van Dyke and Jansen scored field goals and the Legion led, 5 to 1. Meyers then got a rebound for the Taxis and injured his knee on the play and left the game. The quarter ended with the Chutes leading, 7 to 6.

In the second quarter the Chutes forged in front when P. Wildenberg potted a shot, and Tony Jansen looped a basket after a dribble and then repeated when he was left wide open. Two free tosses were added to the total and then Beany Bongers got a one-handed toss from the free throw lane. A fast passing attack gave the Chutes another basket with Red Wildenberg scoring. Appleton's best effort was a goal by Slattery. The half ended with the Legion leading, 22 to 12.

Taxis Cut Score
As the third period opened the Taxis started a drive that almost tied the score. Hammer got a gift shot, Meyers looped a one-hander, Zimmerman followed with a pivot shot and Ehlike shot to the free throw line and counted another basket. The score then was 22 to 10 for the Legion.

B. Bongers brought his team back into the game with a one-handed toss and H. Van Dyke slapped in a follow-up shot. Ehlike came back with a basket for the Taxis and Beany Bongers scored a free throw and the quarter ended with the Chutes leading, 29 to 21.

Beany Bongers opened the final period with a push shot. O. Bongers fouled Ehlike while shooting and he made one of the two tries. Hammer's side shot left the score 31 to 24. The Legion beat Meyers tallied a long basket and then a free throw and the count was 31 to 27.

With the final three minutes getting started Tony Jansen was sent back into the game for the Chutes and stopped Ehlike's drives on the basket. O. Bongers broke away for a basket with the Legion stalling for time and gave his team a 33 to 27 lead. Ehlike was fouled and made two free throws and the score stood, 33 to 29. When Hammer broke up the Legion's stalling to score a field goal the count was 33 to 31 with the crowd going wild. Both teams were fighting desperately for the ball under the Taxi hoop as the game ended.

The box score:
Town Tax: G. F. T. P. 11 21 11 33
Little Chute: G. F. T. P. 11 21 11 33

Guards Win, 35-28
Norman Kneip led Company D to its second victory in as many days when he scored seven field goals in the Guards' 35 to 28 win over Black Creek at the armory. He also had two free throws. Bauer got four buckets for the soldiers.

For Black Creek, Joe Fitzgerald counted five field goals and made a free throw and G. Single three field goals.

The teams played even ball in the opening quarter when the count was 10-10. In the second period the invaders scored 13 points and held a 23 to 21 advantage. The third quarter saw play slowed considerably with Black Creek getting one point and Company D five. In the final stanza the Guards turned on the heat again and counted 11 points to 4 for the Chutes and won easily.

The box score:
Black Creek: G. F. T. P. 11 21 11 33

Pete Alexander Is Given Place In Hall of Fame

mendous speed, like Walter Johnson, but relied on a sharp curve and unerring control. Almost always he kept the ball low, around the knees.

Alex never pitched a no-hitter, but that was about the only thing he missed. He turned in four one-hitters in 1915, a record which probably never will be equalled.

He won 28 games in his first big league season, another modern record, and for three straight years, starting in 1915, he won 30 or more victories, a mark equalled only by Matthewson. Six times he led the National league in games won and lost, and five times he had the lowest earned run average. In 1916 he pitched 16 shutouts, another trifling record.

ALEX IS PROUD
Springfield, Ill., (AP)—Grover Cleveland Alexander has his place in baseball's hall of fame—and he's almost as proud as if it meant his picture on the wall in the Little spot in Springfield where he works as "greeter" to the trade.

Old Pete's life, weather and fun were cracked in a wide grin when he learned he was the only one of baseball's greats to be voted a hall of fame niche in the third annual poll by members of the Baseball Writers association of America. He was proud and happy.

But it wasn't the biggest thing he could have happened. Possessed of a sense of responsibility he didn't always have, 50 years old and a little portly, Alexander thought first of the help from John Connors, given when he needed it most. So, he'd rather have his picture on the wall of Connors' taproom where he tells the boys stories of major league baseball and drinks a little beer with them.

Arrived Broke
Alex landed in Springfield about a year ago—flat broke, sick and discouraged. Connors, sports promoter and hotel operator, sent one of baseball's greatest right-handed pitchers to a hospital for treatment of a leg infection, paid his bill, and gave him a job in the tavern when he was able to work.

He exacted a pledge that old Pete would lay off the "hard stuff"—nothing stronger than beer. Alexander, a great fun-lover in the days when he was pitching brilliant for the Phillies, Cubs and Cardinals, had the cure.

The beer he drinks with the customers may account for growingly expansive waistline, but the "hard stuff" is still out.

"The hall of fame is fine," he said, "but it doesn't mean bread and butter. It's only your picture on a wall."

He wouldn't even guess at how the 1938 races would go, but he said he was pulling for Dizzy Dean to make a big comeback. In his book, Carl Hubbell, Joe Medwick and Joe Di Maggio are tops among the current stars.

Lawrence Drops 1-Point Decision To Beloit Quint

In three starts and left Beloit in the undefeated class. There isn't the slightest chance the Vikes can even matters at Beloit, for the teams probably will play in the Gold cracker box gym which is death for Lawrence before the contest even gets underway.

Big Crowd Sees Game

The game opened with a record crowd for a Beloit-Lawrence game sitting on the edge of the bleacher seats as it sensed the tense situation. The teams sparred around a few moments and then Saecker fouled Cape and he counted. Burton counted on Klein's foul and Buesing on Brown's foul to give Lawrence a 3-2 lead.

Lawrence's 3-2 lead was dumped a one-hander for Beloit to cut the lead but Buesing scored a fairly long shot on an out of bounds play. Faleide made a foul shot and the score stood 6 to 2 for Lawrence and then 6 to 3 when Buesing's technical foul was called.

Faleide fouled Klein and Beloit had a fourth point but Cape scored a field goal for Lawrence as the climax of some sensational following the ball under the Lawrence hoop. Buesing then got his first personal when he fouled Klein but the latter missed. Zimmonich fouled Burton and Lawrence led 9 to 4.

Zimmonich also fouled Buesing but he missed. Zimmonich when fouled by Faleide, Zimmonich fouled a shot for Beloit and the score was 9 to 6 with Masterson making it 10 to 6 on Zimmonich's third foul. Saecker was battled a ball after a mate's shot missed and he scored from out on the floor. When Cape fouled Campbell and the latter got two free throws the score was 10-10.

Vikes Take Lead
Lawrence went ahead again, 11 to 10, when Campbell fouled Buesing. Then Masterson and Tamulis tangled on the floor and a double foul was called. Tamulis made his try. Masterson missed his and the count was 11-11. Brown pushed Burton in a mixup under the hoop and Lawrence led 12-11 but when Masterson pushed Burton, their score was 12-12. Tamulis then scored on a snacker and added two free throws on Masterson's foul and Beloit led 16 to 12 with three minutes left.

Masterson made a free throw and missed one and Buesing followed up a shot to make the score 16-15 with 1:30 left. Campbell made two free throws on Faleide's foul but Masterson took a pass from Buesing and scored a basket as the result of some nice teamwork. Masterson missed a free throw just before the half ended with Beloit ahead, 18-17.

Buesing turned in the first scoring play of the second half when he intercepted a Beloit pass and outdistanced the center to put Lawrence ahead, 19 to 18. A few minutes later Cape took a pass from Faleide and scored to make it 21 to 18 for the Vikes but Beloit got two points back when Williams scored a followup shot. Buesing then fouled Tamulis, his second personal, and the score was tied again, 21-21.

Lawrence hoped to flip in a one-hander and then Burton made it 25-21 when he followed up after Buesing had missed an easy try.

Vikes Lead 29-21
Cape and Burton both missed free throws but Burton followed up a shot, and then made a free throw and Buesing added another and Lawrence was enjoying a 29 to 21 lead, the largest for either side at any stage in the contest. The score was 29 to 22 for Lawrence after Burton fouled Klein with 10 minutes left to play.

Brown gave Beloit two points on a pivot play but Burton took a pass from Cape and registered to make the score 31 to 24. Buesing missed a free throw, Saecker tossed in a long shot for Beloit, Masterson missed a free throw but Cape followed up a shot and Lawrence again held a 7-point advantage, 33 to 26.

Brown pulled a pivot shot to make the score 33-28 and then he and Buesing tangled on the floor and the double foul was called. Brown made his toss and left the game. Buesing missed his and Coach Art Denney almost went to nuts when the scorer announced Buesing had four personals. Every-one else insisted he had only three but there was nothing to do but go by the book and Buesing had to leave the game.

Buesing was replaced by Jackson who took Burton's forward while Cliff moved to guard. The score then was 33 to 29 for Lawrence. It took only a few seconds of play to ascertain that the Vikes weren't doing so well with the shift in positions and when Campbell got a field goal and then Saecker another, the score was 33-31. Faleide put the Vikes back in the lead with a free throw and Burton added a goal on a one-handed shot and Lawrence had a 38-33 score. Crawford was in the game at this stage and Burton was back at forward.

Burton fouled Williams who missed, and then fouled Williams who again missed but when Burton took occasion to foul Tamulis and he dumped in two tries, his sixth and seventh of the evening, Lawrence led by a mere 36-

KAUKAUNA—A Kaukauna basketball team that didn't score a field goal until well into the second quarter almost turned the trick in the fourth but fell prey to an exciting and fast-paced West DePere.

The Kaws were behind 20-12 at half time and their foulers had resigned themselves to a victory for the Black Phantoms. The Kaws were behind 20-12 at half time and their foulers had resigned themselves to a victory for the Black Phantoms.

Peterson sparked the Kaw rally in the third quarter, placing three long shots through the hoop, and Bloch snagged a free throw. West DePere, during the period, bagged four points on baskets by VanSistine, the game's star, and Vaessen. The last quarter opened with the score 24-19 for the Phantoms.

Alger, slim Kaw center, made good on two free throws and Lambie caught one from the floor. West DePere added two free throws to their count and the score stood at 25-23. Kaukauna took time out and before play was resumed, the Phantoms asked for another one.

Kaws Unnerved
With their eyes on the clock and the roar of the crowd in their ears, the Kaws became unnerved. Peterson fouled three times and Lambie and Bloch once each in those mixed minutes. West DePere's score shot up to 30, and still the Kaws, with a furious, stumbling bombardment, nearly tied it up.

Peterson scored a free throw, Bloch flung in a one-handed shot, and Lambie darted in for a short one to bring their score to 28. And they were still swirling around under the basket when the game ended.

VanSistine, an experienced forward with another year yet to play, pushed in seven field goals and three free throws for seventeen of the Phantoms' points. Most of them were done with one hand, off on the

In the melee of the final 30 seconds Crawford fouled Klein but he missed. With the final 10 seconds ticking away Faleide let go a long toss but it missed by the proverbial mile and the Vikes had dropped a heart-breaker.

Burton led the Vikes scorers with 12 points from 4 field goals and 4 free throws while Buesing had 9 points from 3 field goals and 3 free throws. For Beloit, Tamulis led with 11 points from 2 field goals and 7 free throws. Three Beloit players left the game on personals while Buesing was the only Lawrence casualty, wrongly we say.

Illinois Center Has 90 Points to Lead Big 10 Race
Lewis Dehner May Break Record With 18-Point Game Average

CHICAGO (AP)—Unless someone finds a way of putting the brakes on Lewis (Pick) Dehner, Illinois' husky center, the Big Ten is likely to have a new individual scoring champion in basketball, and a new record in the bargain.

Dehner was well out in front today in the individual scramble with 90 points in five games, an average of 18 per contest. In second place was Jewell Young, brilliant Purdue shot winner of last year's title with a record of 172 points, whose total was 60. The Bulls' maker star had played in only four games but his average, 15 points a battle, still left him with a lot of ground to make up in his effort to repeat. Dehner's pace, if maintained, would carry him past the 200-mark in 12 games.

The Illinois center not only increased his margin but tied the individual mark for one game by banging in 12 field goals and five free throws against Chicago last Saturday. His total of 29 points equaled the record set by Joe Reiff of Northwestern, against Chicago in 1933, and matched by Young last year against Illinois.

Ernest Anderson, Indiana guard, and Hod Powell, Wisconsin forward, were tied for third place at 55 points apiece in five games.

THE CHARACTERS

Nina, ex-debutante, impulsively married David, though fascinated by her stepfather. Now she loves David and loathes Richard.

Richard, the suave, handsome stepfather, tried to entice Nina into a secret love affair.

Honey, Nina's gay, childish mother who is wild about Richard, develops a serious heart ailment.

David, a bright young auto salesman with a small salary, adores Nina but finally leaves her, thinking she has gone too far with Richard.

She ought to call Honey, she supposed, and make arrangements to store the furniture--there were only eight days left now. But her arms and legs felt heavy--as though she had been drugged. It was an effort, a physical effort, to raise her hairbrush to her hair; and it was just as hard to put her mind to work thinking--constructively.

She sat down in her dressing-gown, in the kitchen, and fed Button his puppy biscuit, and waited for the coffee to be done. Maybe that would revive her. Maybe, when she had dressed herself, and taken Button out, it would get her started doing things, so that she would know how to go on.

But she made the mistake of going for David's note again; and his "We're through, Nina. Just let's accept it..." was like a knife, twisted in a fresh wound.

Through.

She must accept it then. If he was wrong in thinking she loved Richard, was planning to give herself to him, he was only wrong by a matter of a few weeks. She had thought she loved him, had planned--just that it was all the same... and now David wanted to be rid of her.

But she couldn't go on without him. She couldn't go, now, and dress herself and take Button out; pick up the broken remnants of her life and remold them into some sort of shape--no matter how distorted. She had no life. Nina was quite dead.

"Nina--Let Me In"

She rang the elevator bell, in her dressing-gown, and then popped back behind the door, to hand Button to the elevator man; but when it came, a man stepped off. It was Richard. He saw her, and Nina couldn't slam the door in his face, because the elevator boy was watching.

"Did you want something, Mrs. Day?"

"Yes, Mac. Will you take Button out for a minute?"

"Surely."

And Richard took the dog's leash and handed it to him.

"Nina--let me in"

But now that Mac had gone, Nina didn't have to think of appearances. She tried to shut him out. But he prevented her.

"It's really important, Nina."

She said, "Yes. Honey is ill, again. I suppose?" and she pushed and pushed on the door, frantically. With the physical effort, some of her spirit returned. "Richard--I ever since her return."

New York—(AP)—Ralls set a downward course for the stock market today and moderate offerings depressed many shares 1 to 3 points.

Rallying efforts in late dealings reduced losses. But declines were widespread through the list as steels, chemicals, motors, coppers and other industrial groups in the forefront of the early new year advance followed the railroad stocks.

Conspicuous in bucking the main currents were gold shares. Utilities on the whole also fared better than rails and industrials.

Transaction approximated 1,000,000 shares.

Wall street saw forthcoming quarterly corporate earnings statements as possible stumbling blocks for the market.

Among the outstanding losers were Union Pacific, Santa Fe, Southern Pacific, Great Northern, Sears, Roebuck, International Harvester, Kennecott, American Smelt. ing, Allied Chemical, Du Pont, General Electric, Westinghouse, American Telephone and Johns Manville.

United States Gypsum, up 2 in late dealings, was among the few gainers.

Prediction of Big Wheat Crops Send Prices Down

International Committee Report Undermines Chicago Market

Chicago—(AP)—Approximately 2 cents tumble of wheat prices today accompanied an international wheat committee report saying normal yields from present acreage would lead to enormous supplies.

Leading crop specialists in Chicago ridiculed the international committee report as visionary. They characterized it as ridiculous long range weather forecasting the world over for a year or two years ahead.

Rallying at the last, Chicago wheat futures closed 1 cent to 1 1/2 cents under yesterday's finish, May 95 1/2, July 93 1/2, Corn 4 1/2 down, May 60 1/4, July 60 1/4, and oats 1 1/2 off.

CARLETON ELLIS In His Laboratory

Montclair, N. J.—Carleton Ellis, America's No. 3 inventor, has 700 patents and "guesses" he has that many more pending. Thomas A. Edison had more than 1,000 and John O'Connor, an obscure scientist, nearly that number.

Ellis, at 59, has made a fortune. But when he was 21 and an instructor at Massachusetts Institute of Technology, he had to borrow $500 to finance his first brain child, a point remover sold widely today.

He gets his ideas either by discerning a need for something, or filling that need or by developing "something interesting," that turns up in the course of another experiment.

Clintonville Concern Gets Commission O. K.

Madison—(AP)—The public service commission announced today that beginning March 1 all truck operators will be required to use Highway 100 as a by-pass around Milwaukee if no pickup or delivery is to be made in the city.

The commission said an optional arrangement with private truck owners, contract motor carriers and common motor carriers in a program to reduce traffic on city streets did not work out satisfactorily.

In another order the commission authorized truck lines operating between Milwaukee and the Illinois line to use Highway 41 instead of Highway 45 over which traffic was routed while Highway 41 was being widened and improved.

The commission granted permission to the Clintonville Transfer Line, Inc., Clintonville, to operate as a common carrier on Highway 55 from Milwaukee to Fond du Lac and on Highway 41 to Oshkosh. The new route will bring trucking service to Bear Creek, Marion, Sugar Bush, New London and Hortonville. The North Western railroad also serves these points.

Believes Unemployment Peak Passed in Michigan

Washington—(AP)—Louis M. Nims, Michigan works progress director, predicted today the peak of unemployment in Michigan had been passed.

Nims came to Washington to testify before the senate committee investigating unemployment. He discussed the Michigan situation yesterday with Aubrey Williams, deputy WPA administrator.

"I think we are definitely over the peak of unemployment in Michigan," Nims said. "But we're not over the peak of our own relief load. That will come a month later."

The WPA had not yet had its sources taxed to the limit in Michigan, Nims said, adding approximately 58,000 persons in his state were working on WPA jobs, about 64,000 including those working, had been certified for jobs, and about 70,000 jobs could be made available.

State Engineer Draws Plans for Proposed Bridge

War Department Permit
Will be Sought, Council Informed

New London—An indication that the state will construct a new bridge across the Wolf river at S. Pearl street was revealed in a letter from C. H. Kirch, state bridge engineer, which was read before the common council at the regular meeting last night. The information was received as the result of an inquiry to the state highway commission by Mayor E. W. Wendlandt last week on the status of the city's application for a new span.

The engineer reported that estimates have been made of the cost of different types of structures and drawings are being prepared for the application of a war department permit for the construction of the bridge. The letter indicated the hearing was largely to determine whether the span should be fixed or movable. Plans are being based on a complete survey of the site recently completed by division engineers.

Investigate Wood Lots
After a discussion on the problem of relief workers on the wood cutting project which is nearing completion, Mayor Wendlandt appointed Aldermen A. R. Marggraf, Harry Emans and Frank Meating to investigate available wood lots in this vicinity. Nearly 1,500 cords of green wood were cut on the project this winter.

The transient problem was placed in the hands of Chief of Police Harry Macklin and Matt Nesbitt, jail keeper, to provide transients with work around the city hall to pay for their night's lodging and meal. Signs to that effect will be posted in the transient room.

City Attorney Giles H. Putnam was instructed to draft an amendment to the city traffic ordinances giving police jurisdiction over the private driveway along the Wolf river back of North Water street if possible. Increased public use of the drive makes jurisdiction necessary, the chief reported.

On the proposal of Alderman Springmire the council ordered record slips issued by the tender of the city scales to be made in triplicate instead of duplicate. Parking lots were further discussed but no action was taken pending more investigation.

William Rolfs, 48, Hortonville, was granted a bar tender's license.

But Branch Bobbitt, like so many other independent

AT AUCTIONS in my warehouse in Farmville, North Carolina," says Mr. Branch Bobbitt, "the higher the tobacco sells for, the better my profits. So I'm always glad to see Lucky Strike buyers in there bidding. They know what they want and they'll keep bidding right up until they get it."

"Well—in a cigarette—it's the tobacco that counts. I know tobacco and I know what tobacco is in what cigarettes. So that's one reason I've smoked Luckies for 5 or 6 years."

Mr. Bobbitt represents the "aristocracy" of tobacco experts. He judges the tobacco that the growers grow. He's impartial, not connected with any cigarette manufacturer.

Many other experts agree with Mr. Bobbitt. Sworn records show that, among independent tobacco experts, Luckies have twice as many exclusive smokers as have all the other cigarettes combined.
